| Each additional 500 | 100.00 |

In all manufacturing, mercantile or other buildings where the occupants employ their own electricians and where the nature of their business necessitates the making of sundry changes, additions and repairs, to the plant at short notice—e.g., moving lights, motors or other electrical equipment—such changes, etc., may be made by the occupant's own electricians, from time to time, without the formality of taking out a permit for each such change, etc. (as is required by Clause (a) of Rule 208 herein), provided that the occupant has obtained an Annual Permit from the Commission, in the Inspection District in which the premises in question are situated.

An Annual Permit may be granted, at the discretion of the Commission, upon payment of a fee in accordance with the foregoing Schedule—this will permit the occupant's own electricians to proceed with such emergency changes, etc., as the nature of the business demands.

Following the issue of a new Annual Permit (not the renewal of an existing one) the Commission shall make a general inspection of the occupant's premises, specifically designated in the said Annual Permit, and shall deliver to the occupant, within a period of thirty days, a report concerning the electrical installation in the occupant's said premises.

The Commission shall deliver to the occupant a form upon which the occupant shall record or cause to be recorded all changes and additions made to the electrical installation by the occupant's own electricians. This record shall commence on the day upon which the Annual Permit is issued.

The occupant shall be entitled to an inspection at any time upon making a written request to the Commission.

In the event of a Temporary Current-permit not being renewed, the Supply Authority will be obliged to discontinue the supply of current to the premises in question, without notice, upon expiration of such permit.

The issuing of a Temporary Permit by the Commission in no way obliges it to issue to the Supply Authority a Current-permit authorizing the supply of current to the premises if, after an inspection has been made, the supplying of current would, in the opinion of the Commission, be hazardous to life and/or property, or if all Permits required for the complete installation have not been obtained.

(a) Contractors about to carry out any installation work, alterations, repairs, or extensions, shall, before the work is commenced, obtain a permit, and file an application for inspection on forms provided by the Inspection Department. At the same time, the fees for both permit and inspection shall be paid; the amount being in accordance with the schedule prescribed by the Inspection Department.

(b) Contractors shall, at such time as will permit of inspection being made before any work or portion thereof is liable to be concealed, notify the Inspection Department, in writing, that work is ready for inspection.

(c) A copy of the permit shall be posted on the site of the work in a conspicuous place and shall not be removed until final inspection has been completed.

Rule 209

Current-permits

(a) No installation, alteration, or addition shall be connected or re-connected to any service or other source of electric energy by a Supply Authority, Contractor, or other person, until a current-permit authorizing the supply of electric energy thereto has been obtained from the Inspection Department.

(b) Current-permits shall not be required for re-connection by a Supply Authority in cases where the service has been cut off for non-payment of bills nor in cases where there has been merely a change of occupant.

*Note: Any change in the installation is covered by "Permits and Applications for Inspection"—Rule 208(a), the proper observance of which will safeguard the question of alterations made after the disconnection of a service.

The Inspection Department, however, reserves the right to re-inspect any installation if and when it considers such action to be necessary.

Rule 210

Considerations affecting Approval

Note: This Rule is primarily for field use.

(a) Electrical equipment designed for use under this Code shall be judged chiefly with reference to the following five considerations, which determine also the classification by types, sizes, voltages, current-capacities and specific uses:

(1) Suitability for installation and use in conformity with the requirements of this Code.

(2) Mechanical strength and durability, including, for parts designed to enclose and protect other equipment the adequacy of the protection thus provided.

(3) Electrical insulation.

(4) Heating effects under normal conditions of use and also under such abnormal conditions as are liable to arise in service.

(5) Arcing effects.

(b) Bases for the mounting of live parts shall be composed of incombustible absorption-resisting insulating material, which may include slate, soapstone or marble, and the design shall be such that, considering the material used, the base will withstand the most severe conditions liable to arise in service. Holes for the supporting-screws shall be countersunk, or shall be so located, that there will be at least ½ in. measured over the surface, between the screw head or washer and the nearest live metal part. In all cases where the screw head or washer is located between parts of opposite polarity, it shall be countersunk. If practicable, nuts or screw heads on the underside of the base shall be countersunk, and sealed with an insulating waterproof compound.

(c) Terminal parts, by means of which connections are made, shall ensure thoroughly good connection even under hard usage. For currents above 35 amperes, lugs into which the conductors may be soldered, or solderless connectors, shall be provided. For currents of 35 amperes or less the parts to which wiring connections are made shall securely grip the conductors. Suitable clamps or screws, with terminal plates having upturned lugs, or solderless connectors, may be used.

Note: Lugs or clamps are not required when leads are provided as part of a device.

(d) The following devices, in sizes rated at 30 amperes or less, any terminal or leads of which are intended to be connected to a grounded conductor or to the neutral conductor of a 3-wire d.c. or single-phase a.c. circuit, shall have such terminals or leads identified, unless the fact that they are intended for connection to such a conductor is otherwise clearly evident:

(1) Over-current devices (multiple).

(2) Polarised receptacles and plugs.

(3) Lampholders.

(e) In lampholders, the identified terminal shall be the one connected to the screw shell.

(f) Identification of terminals shall be accomplished as follows:

(1) By plating them with a metal substantially white in colour, such as nickel or zinc, or

(2) By making them of metal substantially white in colour.

The other terminals shall be of a colour readily distinguishable from that of the identified terminals.

(g) Identified leads shall have a white or natural gray covering, the colour of the other leads being readily distinguishable therefrom.

Note: See "Neutral Conductors"—Rule 603 (d).

SECTION 4—SERVICES AND SERVICE EQUIPMENT

Rule 401

Installation of Services

General

(a) Except as provided below, one supply service only of the same potential and characteristics shall be run to any building from the same system of any one Supply Authority.

(1) If a separate service be required for fire pumps or emergency lighting purposes.

(2) Where, on account of buildings of large area, unusually large loads are involved, the Inspection Department has by special permission authorized an additional service.

Where multiple services are to be installed the electrical characteristics of each service shall be plainly indicated in a legible and permanent manner and the service equipments shall be grouped if practicable.

(b) Conductors run aërially from one building to another or to any other structure, may be "open" conductors not less than No. 10 B. and S. Gauge or by special permission they may be in the form of a multiple-conductor cable approved for the purpose.

(c) If service conductors from a pole-line to a building be run underground, lead-covered cable shall be used from a point up the pole 20 ft. above the ground, to the building, and the cable shall be protected against mechanical injury. If rigid conduit or other form of duct be used to protect service conductors entering a building underground it shall be suitably drained towards the building. Ducts shall, where necessary, be sealed against the entrance of flammable gases.

(d) A supply service shall not be run to a building from an electric railway system using a ground return.

Note: This is not intended to conflict with special rules regarding electric-railway cars, car-houses, or passenger and freight stations connected with the operation of electric railways.

(e) The supply end of each conductor of a consumer's service shall extend at least 30 in. beyond the supply end of the consumer's service conduit, or duct, in which it is run, so that connection of the supply service may be readily made to these conductors.

The same minimum length of spare conductor shall be left as "meter loops".

(f) The point at which a consumers' service, whether overhead or underground, enters a building shall be subject to the approval of the Inspection Department and shall be at a location satisfactory to the Supply Authority.

Rule 402

Service Conductors and Conduit

For "High-potential Installations"—See Rule 5002.

General

(a) Service conduit shall have an internal diameter of not less than ¾ in. electrical trade size, and shall contain no other than service conductors and only the conductors of one service. The supply end of consumer's service conduit shall be provided with a weatherproof service fitting.

(b) The supply end of a consumer's service conduit fitting shall, subject to the approval of the Inspection Authority, be installed in a location satisfactory to the Supply Authority and shall be located not less than 18 ft. nor more than 30 ft. above sidewalk or ground level. In the case of low buildings where 18 ft. height is not obtainable the service head shall be as high as practicable and may by special permission be placed at a lower level, but in no case less than 9 ft. above sidewalk or ground level.

(c) Service-entrance cables shall be equipped with an approved rain-tight service head or be formed into a gooseneck, the conductors being taped and painted. In both cases drip loops shall be formed on each conductor and ample lengths left available for splicing.

(d) Service conductors, if lead-sheathed, shall at their points of issue from the lead-sheathing, be protected from moisture by pot-heads or equivalent approved devices.

(e) Consumers' service conductors shall conform to the requirements of Section 6 except that no service conductor shall have a current-carrying capacity less than that of No. 10 B. & S. Gauge copper wire.

If an electric range is to be installed, the minimum size of conductors used shall be No. 6 and No. 8 B. & S. Gauge for 2 and 3 wire consumer's services respectively.

Low Potential

(For "Electrical Communication Systems"—See Rule 6004(h).).

(f) Conductors of a consumer's service connected to an overhead supply service at any point on a building, above ground, shall be run in one or other of the following ways:

(1) In rigid conduit.

(2) In flexible conduit, the conductors being lead-sheathed.

(3) Armoured-cable, the conductors being lead-sheathed.

(4) Cable specially approved for service entrance work, and used only by special permission, having a flame-retarding, absorption-resisting covering and,—

(i) protection against mechanical injury (Armoured Service Entrance cable, i.e., Type A.S.E.; or

(ii) no inherent protection against mechanical injury, but, when used, protected by conduit or other approved means where within 7 ft. of the ground, or where subject to mechanical disturbance (service entrance cable, i.e., Type S.E.—styles A, U, Ur). Such cable shall not be used for potentials exceeding 300 volts between conductors and 150 volts to ground. Cable shall be supported at intervals not exceeding 5 ft. Cables having metal armour (Type A.S.E. armoured cable) may be mounted in contact with the wall; other types (Type S.E. service entrance) shall, when run on combustible or conducting surfaces, be mounted on insulating supports which hold them at least 2 in. from such surface.

(g) That portion of service conductors on the supply side of the service-head may be run outside along walls of buildings and such conductors shall be run as open-wiring; or in rigid conduit; or in flexible conduit (the conductors being lead-sheathed); or lead-sheathed armoured-cable shall be used; or cable or conductors without lead-sheathing, specially designed and approved for service work, may be used by special permission. Such portion, if run as open-wiring, shall consist of single conductors having either a weatherproof covering or rubber insulation.

(h) The neutral conductor of a consumer's service may by special permission be bare, subject to the following conditions:

(1) That the supply is single-phase a.c. and of less than 150 volts to ground.

(2) That the neutral of the supply system is grounded to a metallic-water-piping-system ground irrespective of any grounds made at consumer's services.

(3) That the bare neutral is run in the same protective conduit or armouring as the other conductors of the service.

(i) The current-carrying capacity of bare neutral conductors shall be based on Column C of Table VII and the ampere rating, on this basis, shall be not less than that of the rubber-covered conductors of the same circuit and in no case less than No. 10 B. & S. Gauge. (See Column A of Table VII.)

Rule 403

Location of Service Equipment

General

(a) Service boxes, or their equivalent, shall, subject to the approval of the Inspection Authority, be installed in a location satisfactory to the Supply Authority and shall be readily accessible and shall not be located in coal-bins, clothes-closets, bathrooms, dangerous or hazardous locations, except as permitted in Section 32. In general, they shall be placed within the building and as close as practicable to the point where the service conductors enter the building. A service box may, by special permission, be placed on the outside of a building, or in the rural districts, where, as on a farm, a group of buildings is to be served, the box may be placed on a pole, provided that it be so located or protected that it will neither be liable to suffer mechanical injury nor be harmed by the weather. In such cases no part of the service box shall be less than 6 ft. above the ground or floor directly below it, but either the box or the means of operating it shall be readily accessible.

Rule 404

Control and Protective Equipment

General

(See Rule 5003)

(a) Except as provided below, every electric service shall be furnished either with a service box or with other approved service equipment so located and installed as to constitute an equivalent. (See also Rule 3911 (d) and 4001 (b).)

Exceptions—The service box or other approved equipment may be omitted if all the following conditions are complied with.

(1) That approved circuit-breakers are used in each branch-circuit and these are grouped in a readily accessible cabinet at the point of service entrance.

(2) That the circuit-breakers are operable from without the cabinet.

(3) That the supply is a.c. and does not exceed 150 volts to ground.

(4) That the total connected load does not exceed 100 amperes at either 150 or 300 volts.

(5) That the meter is connected on the supply side of the branch-circuit breakers and that no live parts or wiring are exposed.

Under the conditions provided for in these Exceptions, two single-pole, manually operable circuit-breakers may be used on 3-wire branch-circuits having one conductor grounded, provided that they are so connected together that, when operated manually, they will conform to the requirements of Rule 701 (a).

(b) Service boxes shall conform to the requirements of Sections 7 and 8 except that no single-pole switch or circuit-breaker shall be used on any 3-wire service, and means, such as a removable link, shall be provided within the service-box or with its equivalent, whereby the neutral or the grounded conductor may be conveniently disconnected.

(c) Except on switchboards, service switches shall be of the externally-operable type.

(d) Except as provided below, over-current devices and meters shall be connected on the load side of the service-box or other approved service equipment.

Exceptions—The meter may be connected on the supply side if all the following conditions be complied with:

(1) That no live parts or wiring are exposed.

(2) That the circuit is a.c. and the potential does not exceed 300 volts between conductors.

(3) That the rating of the service-box or other approved service equipment does not exceed 100 amperes.

(e) If oil-switches or oil circuit-breakers be used as service switches, isolating switches shall be installed on the supply side thereof.

In the case of metal-clad equipment the primary isolating device shall be considered to be the equivalent of an isolating-switch or isolating link.

(f) If a service supply one branch-circuit only and the service box containing a fuse or fuses is to be locked or sealed, over-current devices accessible to the consumer shall be inserted in series with the service over-current devices and on the load side of the meter, but they shall be of smaller current-carrying capacity than the service over-current devices.

(g) In any case where an installation, or portion thereof, is to be supplied with current from two or more different sources, the switching equipment controlling the various supplies shall be so constructed or arranged that it will be impossible for any one accidentally to switch on current from one source before that from another has been cut off.

(h) Service boxes shall, if required by the proper authority, be sealed or locked by the Supply Authority and shall not then be opened except by an Inspector or by an authorized agent of the Supply Authority.

(i) A low-potential two, or three-phase consumer's service may be sub-divided into single-phase subservices.

(j) In multiple occupancy and in single occupancy multi-rate service, a separate service box shall be provided for each sub-division of the main service. If the potential does not exceed 150 volts to ground and if such (sub) service boxes are in a common enclosure or in separate enclosures grouped at a readily accessible point as close as practicable to the point of entrance of the service conductors, no main service box need be provided unless such (sub) service boxes exceed 6 in number. Where it is not the practice of the Supply Authority to seal the service entrance equipment (including service switch and troughing enclosing bus bars) a suitable disconnect shall be installed on the supply side in each ungrounded line conductor as close as possible to the service equipment.

(k) If two or more switches be banked at a service entrance, or at a distribution centre, auxiliary gutters or some approved equivalent shall be employed to enclose the wiring between switches. If such gutters or equivalent be employed, the following requirements shall be met:

(1) The gutter or equivalent shall be equipped with terminal blocks to which the wires feeding the individual switches may be connected.

(2) If the gutter or equivalent be more than 6 ft. long, continuous busbars shall be provided in lieu of the terminal blocks.

Note: The banking of switches is not allowed in the case of service *entrances or distribution centres of a greater capacity than 600 amperes each; in the latter case oil-*switches or circuit-breakers shall be used. (See Rule 702 (b).)

(l) If there be more service boxes, or meters, than one, each such box, or meter, shall be labelled in a conspicuous, legible and permanent manner to indicate clearly which installation or portion of an installation it controls.

(m) In multiple occupancy buildings where individual metering is required each tenant's supply shall be provided with separate sealable service equipment or a metering panel which shall be clearly identified. If there is more than one circuit-breaker the same shall be clearly identified to the satisfaction of the Inspection Department.

(n) If a service box embody one or more fuse receptacles access to which may be had without opening the door, such receptacles and their fuses shall be completely enclosed by a separate door having a substantial catch.

(o) Neutral conductors of branch-circuits shall be connected to those terminals on the neutral block that correspond to the terminals to which the line conductors of the same circuits are connected.

Rule 405

Meters

General

Note: A meter is to be considered as including any current and potential transformers used in conjunction therewith.

(a) Meters shall be located as near as practicable to the service box and, except for meter loops (see Rule 401 (e)), that portion of the service conductors between the meter and the service box shall be rendered inaccessible to unauthorized persons.

Where practicable, meters shall be grouped.

Note: See "Use of Rigid and Flexible Conduit and "Armoured-cable"—Rule 507(a) (8).

(b) Meters and metering equipment shall, subject to the approval of the Inspection Department, be installed in locations satisfactory to the Supply Authority and shall be readily accessible from the ground or floor directly below them for reading and inspection, and shall not be located in coal bins, clothes closets, bathrooms, stairways, dangerous or hazardous locations, except as provided for in Section 32, nor in any similarly undesirable places.

A vertical space of not less than 15 in. and a horizontal space of not less than 12 in. or additional space, if required by the Supply Authority shall be left for installation of the meter, unless special permission be granted to do otherwise.

In the case of commercial buildings, the following minimum space shall be provided for metering purposes: 12 in. wide, 22 in. high, with a depth of 9 in.

If mounted outdoors they shall either be of weatherproof construction or shall be in weatherproof enclosures.

Note: For locations exposed to rain or moisture, see Section 34.

(c) Instrument transformers used in connection with meters shall be installed in approved metal enclosures except when mounted on switchboards or in transformer vaults or otherwise rendered inaccessible to unauthorized persons.

(d) For meters not mounted on switchboards, either a suitable panel, fitting, or service boxes with meter back-plates, shall be provided on which the meter and other service equipment shall be mounted.

SECTION 5—WIRING METHODS—LOW POTENTIAL

Rule 501

(b) Conductors located in damp places shall be of the rubber-coverd type. Conductors subjected to corrosive action shall be of the weatherproof (WP), varnished-cloth (VC), or rubber-covered (R) Type, as may be directed by the Inspection Department.

(c) Conductors, not held in place by other means permitted by these Rules, shall be supported on incombustible, absorption-resisting insulators.

(d) Split knobs shall not be used to support conductors larger than No. 8 B. & S. Gauge.

(e) Conductors supported on solid knobs shall be securely tied thereto and the insulation on tie wires shall be of the same type as that on the conductors which they secure.

(f) Either solid knobs or strain insulators shall be used, at the ends of runs, for conductors of No. 8 B. & S. Gauge or larger.

(g) Knobs and cleats shall be securely fastened with screws.

(h) Open wiring, if supported on the faces of joists, wall-studs, or other timber, or on walls in locations where it would be exposed to mechanical injury, shall be protected by running-boards, guard-strips, wooden boxing or sleeves of iron pipe.

Note: Conductors of not less than No. 8 B. & S. Gauge, separated not less than 6 in. may be run directly from timber to timber and supported at each timber only if not subjected to mechanical injury.

Open wiring shall not be run across the tops of ceiling joists in unfinished attics or like places.

Conductors, or portions thereof, which are less then 7 ft. above the floor, shall be considered as being exposed to mechanical injury.

Material for running-boards, guard-strips and boxing, shall be not less than ⅞ in. thick, and the edges of running-boards shall be at least ½ in. beyond the insulators on both sides.

Guard-strips shall be at least as high as the insulators, and placed as close to the conductors as these Rules permit. In wooden boxing there shall be a clear space of not less than 1 in. between conductors and adjacent surfaces, and ends of boxing not abutting on the structure of the building shall be closed.

(i) If conductors are to be installed in hoistways, they shall be run in either rigid or flexible conduit. High-potential conductors shall not be installed in such hoistways. (See Section 31.)

(j) Insulated conductors, if closely grouped, as in the rear of switchboards, shall have a substantial flame-retarding covering.

If the insulation on a conductor has a flame-retarding coating or covering this coating or covering shall, at all terminals and splices, be removed sufficiently to effectually prevent creepage of current over it.

Note: See "Conductors and Conduit"—Rule 3102(i).

(k) Conductors between generators, transformers, switchboards, and other apparatus used in connection therewith, shall either be exposed to view and supported on incombustible, absorption-resisting insulators, or they shall be run in conduit, tile or other fireproof duct, or armoured-cable shall be used.

(l) If conduit or ducts are to be so located that moisture is liable to accumulate therein, the conductors shall be lead-covered. A pot-head or equivalent device shall be used to protect the conductors from moisture and mechanical injury where they issue from the lead-sheathing.

Note: See Section 34.

(m) The radii of all bends in conductors shall be sufficiently large to ensure that no injury will be done either to the conductors or their insulation, covering, or sheathing.

Note: See Rule 504(k).

(n) Holes in outer walls through which conduit or duct passes shall be made water-tight in a permanent and effective manner, and the openings in such conduit or duct, if underground, shall be made gas-tight if this be required by the Inspection Department.

(o) If not exposed to mechanical injury, conductors, where passing through walls, floors, timbers, or partitions, shall each be bushed with a porcelain tube which shall be continuous throughout its length and which shall project at least ½ in. beyond the finished surfaces from which it issues. In locations where porcelain bushings would be exposed to mechanical injury, all the conductors of a circuit shall be bushed with a single sleeve of iron pipe, and each conductor shall be separately encased in a continuous length of flexible tubing extending the full distance between the insulators next adjacent to the ends of the bushing.

(p) If conductors approach at any point within 2 in. either of other electrical conductors, or of metallic piping or other conducting material, they shall, at such points, be protected by porcelain tubes, or by flexible tubing, firmly fixed in place.

In damp places either porcelain tubes shall be used or there shall be an air-space of not less than 1 in. between the flexible tubing and wet or other conducting surfaces.

(q) If lightning-conductors be installed on a building, electric wiring and metal conduit shall, if practicable, be kept at least 8 ft. from such conductors. If this be not practicable they shall be bonded together.

(r) Joints or splices in insulated conductors, unless made with solderless connectors, shall be soldered, but shall first be made both mechanically and electrically secure.

Joints or splices shall be covered with an insulation equivalent to that on the conductors joined.

Ends of insulated conductors (e.g., those at switch and fixture outlets), if not in use, shall be insulated as required for joints.

Except for open, and knob and tube wiring, wiring connection shall be in boxes, or enclosures of incombustible material.

(s) Stranded conductors, except in flexible cords, shall be soldered before being fastened under the heads of terminal binding screws. Stranded and solid conductors of greater current-carrying capacity than No. 8 B. & S. Gauge copper shall be soldered into lugs at terminals unless solderless connectors be used.

(t) Conductors shall be so supported that no injurious strain will be imposed on the terminals of apparatus, devices, etc., nor on any joints or taps.

Rule 502

Open Wiring

Note: See Rule 501, Section 34, and Rule 6001.

(a) Conductors shall meet the requirements specified in Table I.

(b) Conductors shall be rigidly supported, and in normally dry places the separation specified in the following Table shall be maintained throughout:

TABLE II

If circuits of different voltages be run parallel to each other the separation between adjacent conductors of the different circuits shall be at least equal to that between the conductors of the circuit of higher voltage.

In damp places a separation of at least 1 in. from adjacent surfaces shall be maintained.

(c) Conductors run on flat surfaces shall be rigidly supported at intervals not greater than 4½ ft.

(d) Conductors shall not be dead-ended at any fitting which is more than 12 in. from their last supporting insulator.

(e) Sub-bases shall be installed under all snap-switches and receptacles.

(g) If iron pipe sleeves be used for the mechanical protection of conductors, all the wires of any one circuit shall be run in one sleeve, and each wire shall be separately enclosed in flexible tubing extending in a continuous length the entire distance between the insulators adjacent to the ends of the sleeve.

The iron sleeve shall be well secured in place and shall extend at least ½ in. beyond the finished surfaces from which it issues.

Rule 503

Knob-and-tube Work

Note: For grounding of outlet, switch and receptacle boxes, see "Exposed Non-current-carrying Metal Parts"—Rule 904 (a) (5).

(a) Knob-and-tube work shall not be used for potentials exceeding 150 volts to ground, and/or 300 volts between any two conductors.

(b) Conductors shall be of the rubber-covered (R) Type.

(c) Conductors shall be separately supported on incombustible, absorption-resisting insulators. A separation of at least 4 in. between conductors, and at least 1 in. from all adjacent surfaces, shall be maintained. At distribution centres, meters, outlets, switches and at any other places where 4-in. separation cannot be maintained, each conductor shall be encased in a continuous length of flexible tubing extending from within the outlet box, etc., to the nearest supporting knob.

(d) Conductors, where practicable, shall be run singly on separate timbers or studding and shall be rigidly supported at intervals not greater than 4½ ft.

(e) If conductors pass through, or near to, cross timbers in spaces behind plastering, any portion of the conductor which is within a vertical distance of 3 in. above the upper surface of the cross timbers shall be protected by porcelain tubes.

(f) If in any portion of an installation it be impracticable to employ insulating supports, the conductors shall, if exposed to moisture, be run either in conduit, or lead-sheathed armoured-cable. If conduit be used, the conductors shall be of the lead-covered type. If the conductors be not exposed to moisture they may be run separately in flexible tubing extending in continuous lengths from one support to the next, or to an outlet, or from one outlet to another; in this case the conductors may be fished.

Note: See "Armoured-cable Work"—Rule 506.

(g) There shall be no joints or splices, in the conductors, within flexible tubing. Where there is a connection of knob-and-tube wiring to conductors in raceways, armoured-cable, or non-metallic sheathed cable, the junction shall be made in a box, or at or in a fitting having separately bushed holes for each conductor. (See Rule 504 (f).)

Rule 504

Raceway and Armoured-cable Work

General

*Note: Raceways include Metal Conduit—Flexible and Rigid; and Surface and Underfloor Raceways, Gutters, Wireways and Busways,

(a) Raceways and the armouring and lead-sheathing of cables shall be electrically and mechanically continuous throughout.

(b) Raceways and the armouring of cable shall be mechanically and electrically secured to all cabinets and fittings to which they are attached and bushings shall be used to protect the conductors from abrasion.

If electrical continuity be not secured by clean, threaded joints, or by the use of two locknuts or by some other approved equivalent form of joint, bonding jumpers shall be employed.

(c) Raceways and the armouring of cable shall be supported independently of all cabinets and fittings which form part of the raceway or armoured-cable system.

(d) Fins and burrs shall be removed from the ends of raceways to prevent injury to the conductors.

(g) Conductors shall, for ordinary conditions, be of the rubber-covered (R) Type. In normally dry locations the varnished-cloth insulated (VC) Type may also be used. They shall not be exposed to temperatures exceeding those specified in Table I.

(h) If conductors of larger size than No. 8 B. & S. Gauge be necessary, only those having a double braid or a tape and braid shall be used.

(i) All conductors of No. 6 B. & S. Gauge or larger shall be stranded.

(j) All the conductors of a circuit shall be contained in the same raceway (or in the same channel of a multiple-channel raceway) or armouring. The same raceway (or channel), or armouring shall not contain circuits of different systems, and there shall be no joints or splices in conductors within the raceway or channel.

(k) The radius of curvature of the inner edges of bends made in the field in raceways of the draw-in type, and in armoured cable, shall be not less than 6 times the internal diameter of the raceways or armouring.

Elbows and bends shall be made without undue distortion of the raceway or armouring, and without injury to either its inner or outer surfaces.

(l) Raceways and armoured-cable, if to be laid in cinders, shall be protected from corrosive action by a grouting of concrete not less than 1 in. in thickness entirely surrounding the raceway or cable.

(m) For raceway and armoured-cable wiring installed underground or in concrete slabs or other masonry in direct contact with moist earth or in other permanently moist locations where subject to condensation or moisture, the conductors shall be of the lead-covered type, or of other type specially approved for this purpose.

Rule 505

Rigid and Flexible Conduit Work

Conductors shall not be drawn in until the mechanical work on the building reaches a stage where damage to the conduit, fittings or conductors is not likely to occur.

Note: See Section 34.

(c) A run of conduit between outlet and outlet, or between any two draw-in points, shall not include more than the equivalent of 4 quarter-bends.

(d) The size of conduit shall be such that the conductors can be both drawn and withdrawn without injury to the conductors.

Note: See Tables IX to XIII incl., Section 6.

(e) Conductors in vertical conduit shall be supported at not more than the following intervals:

Table III

| Above 750,000 C. M. | 35 |

Note: Any suitable method of support may be used which, while maintaining the continuity of the conduit systems, does not injure either the cables or their covering.

Rule 506

Armoured-cable Work

(See "Raceway and Armoured-cable Work"—Rule 504, and "Neutral Conductors"—Rule 603 (g).)

(a) Armoured-cable shall be of lead-covered rubber-covered type if used for underground runs, and on other circuits if embedded in masonry, concrete or fill, in buildings in course of construction, and elsewhere if the location be such that the cable will be exposed to weather, continuous moisture, excessive humidity, or if exposed to oil, gasoline, or other materials having a deteriorating effect on rubber insulation.

(b) Approved bushings of insulating material or other equivalent approved means, shall be provided at all points where conductors issue from the armour. The connector or clamp by means of which the armoured-cable is fastened to boxes or cabinets shall be of such design that the insulating bushing or its equivalent will be visible for inspection.

(c) Armoured-cable shall not be fished when used in any building where concealed knob-and-tube wiring or concealed non-metallic sheathed cable wiring, is already installed, except in locations where it is evident that the existing wiring will suffer no damage.

(d) Cable run through studs, joists or similar wood members, shall either be so located that the outer circumference will be not less than 1¼ in. from the edges of such wood members or else the cable shall be effectively protected from mechanical injury where passing through the holes.

(e) Armoured-cable shall be securely held in place by approved fastenings spaced not more than 1 ft. from boxes or fittings and not more than 4½ ft. apart unless fished.

Rule 507

See also Rule 501 (k).

(a) In all classes of work specified below, only rigid conduit or, by special permission, flexible conduit, or armoured-cable, shall be employed.

Note: This will not prohibit the use of surface raceways or armoured-cable if (as, for example, in Rule 3901 (c)), their use be specifically allowed, nor will it prohibit the use of underfloor raceways.

(1) For wiring of stationary motors of ½ H.P. and larger sizes, at 110 volts or more, except those in private residences.

(2) Wiring in such buildings as are classed by local by-laws as being of fire-proof or of mill construction.

(10) Wiring for fire-escape lights and fire-gongs.

Rule 508

Surface Raceway Work

(See also "Raceway and Armoured-cable Work"—Rule 504 and "Rigid and Flexible Conduit Work"—Rule 505).

(a) Surface-raceways shall not be used for circuits protected by over-current devices, rated, or set, at more than 30 amperes, and shall not be used where the potential exceeds 150 volts to ground. The total fusing of wires contained in single service raceways shall not exceed 60 amperes.

(b) Surface-raceways shall not be concealed and shall not be installed in damp places.

Note: For exception see "Underplaster Extensions"—Rule 509.

(c) Backing shall be secured in position by screws or bolts, the heads of which shall be flush with the metal.

(d) Surface raceways shall not be used for conductors larger than No. 8 B. & S. Gauge nor for a number of conductors greater than that for which the raceway is approved and in no case for more than ten conductors except as otherwise permitted in this Code.

Note: See Sections 36 and 60.

(e) Surface-raceways may be extended through a dry wall or partition, but no joints in the raceway itself shall be concealed within such wall or partition unless such wall or partition be constructed wholly of incombustible material. If a wall or partition be damp, or if the raceway pass through a floor, a sleeve of iron pipe shall be placed over the raceway and shall extend clear of either side of the wall, partition or floor.

If protection from mechanical injury be necessary a sleeve of iron pipe shall be employed.

(f) Multiple-channel surface-raceways may be employed and may carry the conductors of different systems provided that each compartment contains only the conductors of one system and that the compartment allotted to each system maintains the same relative position throughout. The systems may include communication systems.

Rule 509

Under-plaster Extensions

(a) Extensions of existing branch-circuits having conductors not larger than No. 10 B. & S. Gauge, may, in buildings of fire-proof construction, be laid on the face of the masonry or other materials of which the walls and ceiling are composed and buried in the plaster finish.

Under-plaster extensions shall either be run in metal raceways, or armoured-cable shall be used. They shall comply with the rules covering the kind of material employed.

Rule 510

Non-metallic Sheathed Cable Work

(See "Neutral Conductors"—Rule 603)

Note: In the following Clauses cross-references are made to Rules which require the use of flexible tubing. Such tubing is not required for non-metallic sheathed cable.

(a) Non-metallic sheathed cable shall not be used where the potential exceeds 300 volts between any two conductors.

(b) The cable may be multiple-conductor assemblies in all approved sizes and may also contain an uninsulated conductor to be used for grounding purposes only.

(c) The cable shall be run in continuous lengths from outlet box to outlet box (or junction boxes or panel boxes) as a "loop" system, all joints, splices and taps being made in the boxes.

If either concealed or open wiring be connected to conductors in raceways or armoured cable the junction shall be made in boxes, or at or in fittings having separately bushed holes for each conductor. (See also Rule 514 (e).)

(d) Bending and other handling of the cable shall be such that its covering is not injured.

(e) The cable shall be secured between outlets by means of straps or other approved devices spaced at intervals not exceeding 4½ ft., and also within 12 in. of every box or fitting. Straps if of iron or steel shall have a hot-dip galvanized finish and shall properly fit the cable.

(f) The cable shall not be buried in plaster, cement or similar finish.

(g) Cables in unfinished attics shall be run, supported, and protected, in the same manner as is required for that portion of the building which is to be completed; but in roof-spaces which will be permanently inaccessible and in which there are no gas or water pipes the cable will be considered as not exposed to mechanical injury and may therefore be run either through, or upon, the timbers.

(h) Except as provided in the preceding Clause the cable will generally be considered as exposed to mechanical injury if it be run across the open faces of ceiling joists and shall under these conditions be installed as required by Rule 501, "General." In places where the possibility of mechanical injury is remote these requirements need not be observed.

(i) Cable run through studs, joists or similar wood members, shall either be so located that its outer circumference will be not less than 1¼ in. from the edges of such wood members or else the cable shall be effectively protected from mechanical injury.

(j) At outlet and other boxes the cable shall be rigidly fastened to such boxes by means of fittings which completely close the opening.

(k) Boxes and fittings used shall be of types approved for use with non-metallic sheathed cable. Where grounded metal boxes are not required outlet and switch boxes may be of fire-resistive moulded composition insulating material, with covers of the same material.

(l) Boxes used for flush devices shall be not less than 3 in. deep except that, in narrow partitions, shallow boxes may be used wherever not more than one joint is to be made in a box.

(m) The cable may be used in open-wiring work under the following conditions:

(1) If supported directly upon surfaces of woodwork, plaster, concrete, brick or other building finish.
(2) If it be adequately protected wherever it is less than 5 ft. above a floor. If run horizontally along a wall it shall be at least 6 in. above the floor.

Note: See Rule 501 (h) to (q).

(n) In concealed wiring the cable may be fished if it be impracticable to provide the supports specified in Clause (e).

Note: See "Knob-and-tube Work"—Rule 503.

Rule 511

Underfloor Raceways

(See Raceway and Armoured-cable Work—Rule 504.)

(a) Underfloor raceways shall be used only in normally dry locations in buildings of fire-proof construction. They shall be embedded in the concrete or concrete fill of the floor.

They shall not be used for conductors, the potential-difference between any two of which exceeds 300 volts, nor for any conductor larger than No. 8 B. & S. Gauge, not for any conductor protected by an over-current device rated or set at more than 30 amperes.

Note: Underfloor raceways may be placed in the concrete fill between the rough and the finished floor when there is at least 1 in. of concrete placed above the raceway.

(b) Underfloor raceways of open-bottom type shall not be used in floors of monolithic construction.

(c) Underfloor raceways of open-bottom type shall not be used in shallow-floor concrete fills unless proper cover is maintained and either a pad of concrete not less than 1 in. thick, or approved fittings, protect the wire from contact with piping, structural steel or other metal. The raceway shall be laid on a smooth, clean, surface and, in deep concrete fills, it shall be brought to the proper level by setting it on a concrete pad of proper thickness and at least twice the width of the raceway.

(d) Underfloor raceways shall be so laid that a straight line from the centre of one junction box to the centre of the next will coincide with the centre line of the raceway. Raceways shall be mechanically secured to prevent disturbance of this alignment during construction.

(e) All joints along edges of raceways and between raceways, couplings, and junction-boxes, and between the junction-box cover-plates and covering, shall be filled with an approved waterproof cement. Raceways shall be so arranged that there will be no low points or traps either at the fittings or in the raceway run. Crossings shall be avoided wherever possible.

(f) If raceways be run at other than right angles, special fittings shall be provided if, in the judgment of the Inspection Department, these be necessary. Connection between raceways and distribution-centre or wall outlets shall be by means of conduit or approved fittings. Dead-ends of raceways shall terminate in junction-boxes or other approved fittings.

(g) Inserts and outlets in raceways shall be made both mechanically and electrically secure. Inserts in fibre raceways shall be screwed into the fibre and shall not be set until the floor is laid unless they are made mechanically secure by separately grouting them in. All inserts and junction-boxes shall be carefully levelled to the floor grade and sealed with water-tight plugs.

(h) Care shall be exercised in setting inserts and when cutting through the raceway wall that chips and other dirt do not fall into the raceway. Special tools designed to eliminate this objection and to prevent the tools from entering the raceway and injuring conductors already there, shall be employed.

(i) Metal raceways and metal fittings shall be suitably protected from corrosion.

(j) Multiple-channel underfloor raceways may be employed and may carry the conductors of different systems, provided that each compartment contain only the conductors of one system and that the compartment alloted to each system maintain the same relative position throughout. The systems may include communication systems.

(k) In open-bottom raceways, approved double-braid rubber-covered conductors, Type R, or armoured-cable, or non-metallic sheathed cable, shall be used. If it be impossible to install the cement pad required by Clause (c) above, at crossings with conduit, structural steel or other metal, armoured-cable shall be used for branch-circuits.

(l) Not more than 10 conductors shall be placed in any one raceway, nor shall the combined cross-sectional area of all conductors (including insulation) exceed forty per cent. (40%) of the interior cross-sectional area of the raceway: if only armoured-cable or non-metallic sheathed cable be contained this shall not apply. Conductors of interior wiring systems not electrically connected to each other within the building shall not be contained within the same raceway.

(m) Conductors shall not be drawn in until the mechanical work on the building reaches a stage where damage to the raceways, fittings or conductors is not likely to occur.

(n) Junction boxes shall not be used as outlet boxes, and the distance between adjacent boxes in the same run of raceway shall not exceed 60 ft.

(o) Metal underfloor raceways shall have a thickness of not less than No. 14 U.S. Sheet-metal Gauge.

Rule 512

Basements, Bathrooms, etc.

(a) In basements, bathrooms, kitchens, etc., and in any damp place, exposed non-current-carrying parts of lighting fixtures, etc., shall be made of insulating material unless they be out of reach or be grounded.

In such places drop-lights shall not be used and lamp-holders shall be keyless and shall be controlled by wall switches, unless exposed non-current-carrying metal parts be grounded.

(b) In the lighting of basements the lamp which lights the stairs shall be controlled by a switch located at the top of the stairs.

(c) Plug receptacles shall not be installed in bathrooms.

(d) In single-family dwellings one-plug receptacles of 1000-watt capacity must be installed in each kitchen. The installation of an electric range equipped with a convenience outlet will constitute compliance with this requirement.

Rule 513

Open Wiring on Exteriors of Buildings and between Buildings on the same Premises

(See also "Service Conductors and Conduit", — Rules 402 (f) and (g).)

(a) Conductors shall have either rubber insulation and/or a weatherproof covering.

(b) Conductors supported on, or in close proximity to, the exteriors of buildings shall be so installed and protected that they will not be a menace to workmen or to other persons, and will not, themselves, be exposed to mechanical injury. They shall not be less than 12 ft. from the ground except by special permission.

Note: For exceptions see "Service Conductors and Conduit"—Rule 402 (b).

If conductors are to be so located that they would be exposed to mechanical injury from awnings, swinging signs, shutters or other movable objects, they shall be run in rigid conduit made waterproof.

(c) Conductors on the exteriors of buildings exposed to the weather shall be supported by brackets, racks, insulators, or other approved means, spaced at intervals not exceeding 9 ft. Individual conductors shall be separated at least 6 in. from each other and at least 2 in. from adjacent surfaces.

If approved brackets, etc., be not used, petticoat insulators shall be used, so located that they will hold individual conductors at least 12 in. apart, and at least 2 in. from adjacent surfaces. These insulators shall be spaced at intervals not exceeding 15 ft.; if conductors are liable to disturbance this interval shall be suitably decreased.

Note: Conductors not exposed to the weather may be supported on glass or porcelain knobs placed at intervals not exceeding 4½ ft. and holding the conductors at least 1 in. from adjacent surfaces.

(d) Multiple-conductor cables shall be treated as for service conductors. (See Clause 402 (f).)

(e) Conductors shall be so located or guarded that they cannot be reached by a person standing on the fire escape, flat roof or any portion of a building to which normal access is provided. They shall be at least 6 ft. clear of the highest point of a flat roof.

(f) Conductors passing over buildings shall, if practicable, be supported on structures which are independent of the buildings, but if this be impracticable they shall be securely supported on suitable trestles, constructed, preferably of steel.

(g) Conductors may only be carried over buildings by special permission and work shall not be commenced till plans and specifications have been approved by the Inspection Department.

Rule 514

Installation of Boxes, Cabinets, Outlet and Terminal Fittings

(a) On any two wires of a branch-circuit to which any flexible conductor or fixture-wire of less current-carrying capacity than that of a No. 14 B. & S. Gauge copper wire is connected, or is liable to be connected, the number of outlets shall not exceed 12.

Where fixed multi-outlet assemblies are employed, each five feet or fraction thereof of each separate and continuous length shall be considered as one outlet; except in locations where a number of appliances are likely to be used simultaneously, when each one foot or fraction thereof shall be considered as an outlet.

In telephone and telegraph equipment rooms the number of lighting fixtures associated with and mounted on equipment frames and/or the number of outlets mounted on equipment frames per circuit, need not be limited, provided that each branch-circuit is equipped with a circuit-breaker of not more than 15-ampere rating.

(b) The number of mogul lampholders connected to any two wires of a branch-circuit shall not exceed 8.

(c) Conductors of not less than No. 14 B. & S. Gauge shall be provided on circuits to which mogul lampholders and fixtures using these devices are connected.

Note: Taps from the circuit wires to any fixture equipped only with mogul lampholders need not be of larger current-carrying capacity than is required or the conductors in the fixture.

(d) At each outlet, switch, or junction point of conduit, surface-raceway, armoured-cable, or non-metallic sheathed cable, and at each outlet and switch point of concealed knob-and-tube work, an approved box or its equivalent shall be installed. The box shall be provided with a cover, unless a fixture canopy be installed. Shallow boxes and plates may be used only by special permission. At least 6 in. of free conductor shall be left at each outlet for the making of joints or the connection of fixtures except where conductors are intended to loop through lampholders, receptacles, and similar devices, without joints.

(e) An outlet or terminal fitting may be used instead of the box required by Clause (d) of this Rule at ends of conduit, armoured-cable, surface-raceway, and non-metallic sheathed cable, from which conductors are run without splice, tap or joint within the fitting, to appliances or to knob-and-tube wiring. The fitting shall provide a separately-bushed hole for each conductor; it need not be accessible if in concealed knob-and-tube work. Such fittings shall not be used at outlets for fixtures. An insulating bushing may be used instead of a box at ends of conduit where conductors leave the conduit behind a switchboard, or where more than 8 conductors leave the conduit at control apparatus, or in similar locations, in which case the conductors shall be bunched, taped, and painted with insulating paint.

(f) In new work, metal supports shall be used for boxes and fittings which are not secured to a stud, joist or similar fixed structural unit except that a wooden board at least $\frac{7}{8}$ in. in thickness may be used for support if rigidly secured to such structural units. Lath, of wood, metal, or composition, shall not be accepted as a structural unit.

(g) Boxes, cabinets and fittings shall be securely fastened in place. Boxes and fittings of less than 100 cu. in. attached to firmly-secured, exposed raceway by threading or other connection approved for the purpose shall be considered to be satisfactorily fastened.

(h) If combination gas and electric outlets be employed, outlet boxes shall be securely bonded to the gas pipes. A fixture-stud or other suitable means of support shall be provided at every fixture outlet at the time of its installation.

Note: See "Installation of Fixtures and Pendant Lamps"—Rule 2010 (f).

(i) Junction-boxes shall be so installed that wiring contained in them will be accessible without removing any part of the building structure.

(j) Boxes, cabinets and fittings, in walls or ceilings shall be so installed that the front edges will not be set in from the finished surface more than $\frac{1}{4}$ in. On wooden or other combustible walls or ceilings, the front edges shall be flush with the finished surface, or shall project therefrom. A plaster surface which is broken or incomplete shall be repaired, so that there will be no gaps or open spaces at the front edges. Outlet boxes newly installed as additions to existing work may be mounted directly upon existing plaster surfaces if securely fastened in place.

Note: The requirements of the first three sentences do not apply to walls or ceilings composed of concrete, tile or other incombustible material.

(k) In damp places, boxes, cabinets, and fittings shall be so placed or constructed as to prevent moisture from entering and accumulating within the devices.

(l) Either couplings or bushings shall be provided at openings in boxes, cabinets, and fittings, for clamping or otherwise securing to them conduit, raceways, armoured-cable, non-metallic sheathed cable or flexible tubing. These couplings and bushings may be either units in themselves or form part of boxes, etc., but in any case they shall adequately close the openings, including those for conductors run as open-wiring.

In dry places if knob-and-tube work be used, approved flexible tubing may be employed as an insulated bushing if it extend from the last insulating support and be firmly secured in place.

(m) Unused openings in boxes, cabinets, and fittings shall be effectively closed by metal plugs or plates affording protection substantially equivalent to that of the wall of the box, etc.

(n) In making a surface extension from an existing outlet of concealed wiring a box, or extension-ring shall be mounted over the original box and electrically and mechanically secured to it. The extension shall then be connected to this box in the manner prescribed for the method of wiring employed in making the extension.

(o) Conductors of different systems shall not occupy the same box, cabinet, or auxiliary gutter unless a barrier of sheet steel not less than No. 16 U.S. Sheet-metal Gauge or its equivalent of suitable insulating material, be used to divide this space in order to separate the conductors of different systems. Such barrier shall be rigidly fastened to the box or cabinet unless an approved device assuring positive separation of the conductors be used.

Special permission to vary from the foregoing shall be obtained in the following cases:

(1) A double-throw switch as used in some emergency lighting systems.

(2) The supply and control conductors of remotely controlled devices unless insulated for the same voltage.

(p) The number of conductors running through or terminating in an outlet or junction box, shall be limited according to the free space within the box and the sizes of the conductors, as indicated in Tables IV and V.

Table IV

Space for Conductors in Boxes

| Size of Conductor B. & S. Gauge No. | Free Space Within Box for Each Conductor Cubic Inches |
|---|---|
| 14 | 2.0 |
| 12 | 2.25 |
| 10 | 2.5 |
| 8 | 3.0 |

Note: For the patterns of boxes in common use and if no fittings such as fixture studs or hickeys be located within the box the foregoing will generally accommodate the numbers of conductors given in the following Table.

Table V

Number of Conductors in Boxes

| Box Dimensions | Maximum No. of Conductors B. & S. Gauge No. | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| | 14 | 12 | 10 | 8 |
| 1½ x 3¼ (Octagonal | 4 | 4 | 2 | — |
| 1½ x 4 or Round) | 10 | 8 | 6 | 4 |
| 1½ x 4 Square | 12 | 10 | 8 | 6 |
| 1½ x 4 11/16 Square | 16 | 12 | 10 | 8 |
| 2⅛ x 4 11/16 Square | 20 | 16 | 12 | 10 |

Note: The above limitations are not intended to be applied to terminal housings supplied with motors nor to types of boxes or fittings without knockouts and having hubs or recessed ports for terminal bushings and locknuts.

(q) Lighting branch-circuit panelboards shall not contain the conductors of more than 40 circuits if one over-current device per circuit be used or more than 20 circuits if two over-current devices per circuit be used.

Cabinets and cutout boxes housing such panelboards shall not contain more than one panelboard unless they comply with one of the following conditions:

(1) The cabinet is divided between panelboards by an unpierced barrier of incombustible material.

(2) The panelboards are located side by side or in a horizontal row.

Auxiliary Gutters

(a) Auxiliary gutters, used to supplement wiring spaces at meter centres, distribution centres, switchboards, and similar points of interior wiring systems, may enclose conductors and cables or bus-bars, but shall not be used to enclose switches, over-current devices or other appliances or apparatus. An auxiliary gutter shall not extend a greater distance than 20 ft. beyond the equipment which it supplements; an approved wireway or busway may be used instead.

(b) Auxiliary gutters shall be supported throughout their entire lengths at intervals not exceeding 5 ft.

(d) Wireways shall not contain more than 30 conductors unless special permission be obtained for the use of a larger number, or unless all conductors in excess of 30 be for signalling circuits or be control conductors between a motor and its starter and be used only for starting.

In any case the following provisions shall be met:

(1) No conductor larger than 500,000 C.M. shall be used.

(2) The sum of the cross-sectional areas of all contained conductors (including insulation) shall not exceed twenty per cent (20%) of the interior cross-sectional area of the wireway, except that in the case of control conductors between a motor and its starter the limitation may be raised to forty per cent (40%).

(3) The temperature to which rubber-covered conductors in a wireway are exposed shall not exceed 50 deg. C. (122 deg. F.).

(e) Rigid or flexible conduit, surface raceways or armoured-cable shall be used in extensions from wireways or busways, and shall be connected to the wireway or busway in a manner that is approved for the material employed, as specified elsewhere in this Section.

(f) Conductors of different systems shall not occupy the same wireway or busway unless separated from each other by barriers.

(g) If alternating current be employed all conductors of a circuit shall be placed within the same wireway or busway.

(h) Wireways and busways shall be so marked that the manufacturer's name, trademark, or other recognized symbol of identification can be determined after the installation is completed.

(i) Plug-in connectors or other devices for tapping off branch-circuits from busways shall be of approved types containing the necessary over-current devices required for the branch-circuits.

(j) If either expansion joints or telescoping sections be used in wireways and busways bonding jumpers shall be provided.

REMARKS

Figures in bold-faced type are only applicable to conductors with other than rubber insulation.

For 220 volts multiply the distance in feet by two, for the same percentage drop.

(c) One conduit shall not contain more conductors of a given size than are specified in Table IX for rubber-covered covered conductors and Table XII for lead-covered conductors.

Note: See "Rigid and Flexible Conduit Work" and "Theatre Installations."

Tables IX, XI and XII apply only to complete conduit systems and not to short sections of conduit used for the protection of portions of open wiring which would otherwise be exposed to mechanical injury.

Publications Under The Regulations Act, 1944

THE REGULATIONS ACT, 1944

WHEREAS it is provided by subsection 1 of section 3 of The Regulations Act, 1944, that every regulation shall within one month of the filing thereof be published in THE ONTARIO GAZETTE, and whereas by virtue of subsection 2 of the said section 3 and of a certain Order-in-Council dated the 11th day of May, 1944, the Attorney General may at any time by order, extend the time for publication of a regulation, such order to be published with the regulation, and whereas having regard to the volume of regulations which have been and which will be filed before the 31st day of December, 1944, and to the present shortage of skilled craftsmen in the printing trade, it will in many cases be impossible to comply with the provisions of subsection 1 of section 3 of the said Act;

IT IS THEREFORE ORDERED that the time for publication of regulations filed before the 1st day of January, 1945, be extended for such period as may be necessary in the case of each set of regulations so filed.

Dated at Toronto this 9th day of November, 1944.

Attorney General.

THE POWER COMMISSION ACT

Rule 603

Neutral Conductors

(a) The neutral conductor shall have sufficient current-carrying capacity to carry the maximum unbalanced load.

The maximum unbalanced load shall be the computed load as determined by Rule 604, less all loads tapped from the ungrounded conductors and not connected to the neutral; except that the load thus obtained shall be multiplied by one hundred and forty per cent (140%) for 5-wire two-phase systems. A demand factor of seventy per cent (70%) may be applied to that portion of the computed load current in excess of 200 amperes.

Note: A common neutral conductor may be employed:

(a) For two or three sets of 3-wire feeders.

(b) For two sets of 4-wire or 5-wire feeders.

(b) The neutral conductor shall be run direct from the service box to all centres of distribution and all branch connections to this conductor shall be made at such centres.

(c) Bare, neutral conductors, except as permitted for services, shall be mounted on insulators: e.g. when run in busways.

Note: This does not apply to the supply service or wiring within transformer vaults or approved enclosures.

(d) The neutral conductor, if any, and that conductor only, and the grounded conductor on 2-wire circuits, shall, in conductors up to and including No. 4 B. & S. Gauge, if insulated be identified. Flexible cord, if it be permanently attached at the supply end, as for example, in the case of pendant lights, shall also have one conductor identified. The coverings of the other conductor or conductors shall be finished to show a continuous colouring contrasting with that of the identified conductor.

(e) If one of the circuit conductors is to be grounded, the ground connection shall be made to the identified conductor referred to in Clause (d).

(f) For conductors larger than No. 4 B. & S. Gauge and for those having other than rubber insulation, identification shall either be continuous, as for No. 4 and smaller sizes, or else each continuous length of conductor shall, at the time of installation, be suitably labelled, or otherwise clearly marked, at each end so that it can be readily identified.

(g) No identified conductor shall be used as a conductor for which identification is not required by these Rules, except as follows:

(1) In armoured-cable and non-metallic sheathed cable work, the identified conductor may be rendered permanently unidentifiable by painting or other suitable means. This shall be done at every point where, (e.g.) at junction boxes, etc., the separate conductors have been rendered accessible and visible by the removal of the outer covering of the cable.

(2) If armoured-cable or non-metallic sheathed cable be used without the identified conductor forming part of the circuit, the identified conductor shall be cut off short, or other suitable means shall be employed, to indicate clearly that the identified conductor does not form part of the circuit. This shall be done at every point where the separate conductors have been rendered accessible and visible by the removal of the outer covering of the cable.

Rule 604

Feeders and Switches

Determination of Minimum Allowable Sizes

(For conductors supplying motor circuits see "Conductor Sizes for Motor Circuits"—Rule 605)

Notes:

(1) The demand factors and wattage requirements referred to herein are the minimum percentages of the total connected load which conductors shall be capable of carrying in accordance with Rule 601 (b). These figures are believed to be suitable for ordinary conditions. In any particular case the Inspection Department may, at its discretion, require the application of figures larger than those required by this Rule. In any doubtful case the Inspection Department should always be consulted.

(2) This Rule specifies actual demand factors and wattage requirements, only for those installations, or portions of installations, consisting of branch-circuits protected by over-current devices *rated, or set, at not more than 15 amperes; except that requirements are also specified herein for those circuits which supply non-portable domestic electro-thermal apparatus.

(3) The sizes of conductors as herein determined do not take voltage drop into consideration. If necessary, the size should be increased to the extent that the total drop along lead and return conductors (on a 3-wire circuit, the outers) will not exceed 2%, the current being that obtained after applying the appropriate demand factor.

(4) The use of demand factors of less than 100% has the effect of reducing the size of conductors that would be otherwise required by Rule 601 (b). The size of conductors and switches thus computed shall be the minimum used, except that, if the next smaller standard size in common use has a current-carrying capacity not more than 5% less than this minimum, the Inspection Department may, at its discretion, permit the use of the smaller size. The demand factors and wattage requirements do not apply to service conductors in cases where they would reduce the size of such conductors below No. 10 B. & S. Gauge. (See "Service Conductors and Conduit"—Rule 402 (e).)

(5) For sizes of conductors for motor circuits see Rule 605. Demand factors employed for classes of circuits not covered by Rule 605, if less than 100%, are subject to the specific approval of the Inspection Department in each individual case (see Clause (h) below). Such circuits will usually be in large or special installations; Rule 207 (a) and (b) requires that plans and specifications be submitted to the Inspection Department —this will involve the checking of conductor sizes and the determination of demand factors and wattage requirements.

(6) In calculating the size of a feeder the demand factor for the feeder is applied to the sum of the individual connected loads on the sub-feeders. It is not correct to apply it to the sum of the loads determined for the sub-feeders after the application of their demand factors.

Example: Two sub-feeders each supply 20 branch-circuits protected by 15-ampere fuses. According to Clause (b) below, the demand factor for each sub-feeder is 70%, and according to Clause (a) each of the 20 circuits is to be considered as carrying 10 amperes. The calculated load which each sub-feeder will have to carry is therefore:

20 x 10 x 70 ÷ 100 = 140 amperes.

Again, the demand factor for the feeder, according to Clause (b) below, is 60%. The calculated load which the feeder will have to carry is therefore:

40 x 10 x 60 ÷ 100 = 240 amperes.

(a) Each branch-circuit protected by over-current devices rated, or set, at not more than 15 amperes shall be considered as having a connected load of not less than 10 amperes. If it be known or be reasonably certain that the connected load on such a circuit will be more than 10 amperes, the higher figure shall be considered as the connected load.

(b) Minimum loads, in amperes, which conductors are to be capable of carrying (exclusive of loads due to non-portable domestic electro-thermal apparatus—see Clause (f)) shall be determined by the use of the following demand factors:—

Table XV

Notes:

(1) The values in the Table above apply to one or more cooking and baking appliances but not to other appliances.

(2) The demand factor for one range may also be applied to the conductors of a range branch-circuit.

(3) For ranges connected to 3-wire circuits divide the nameplate current-rating by 2 unless this rating be based on 220 volts.

(d) The lighting load shall be computed in accordance with Table XVII and the number of lighting branch-circuits protected by over-current devices rated, or set, at not more than 15 amperes, into which any particular installation or portion thereof shall be sub-divided, shall be governed by it.

(1) Multiply the watts per sq. ft. (Column B) for the building or occupancy being considered, by the total floor area involved.

(2) Then apply the demand-factors (Column C) for the respective wattages as specified in Column B, to the load determined by Clause (a).

(3) The floor area shall be determined by the outside dimensions of the building or occupancy, and the number of floors, not including cellars, unfinished attics, open porches, and other spaces in dwellings not used as living quarters.

The demand-factors given in the following Table are based on average load conditions. If at any time it be found that the conductors will be, or are, overloaded, they shall be increased to comply with the provisions of Note: (1) under the title of Rule 604.

Table XVII

 Exclude area of ballroom; specific ballroom load served shall be included.*

 For each linear foot measured horizontally along the base, add the following: counter-cases, 25 watts; wall or standing cases, 50 watts; show windows, 200 watts.*

† This includes buildings of more than one floor, used for manufacturing or merchandising.

Notes:

(i) This clause applies only to lighting circuits with or without convenience outlets. Other circuits are to be dealt with under either Clause (c) or Clause (f).

(ii) In ball-rooms of hotels, in the operating rooms and X-ray departments of hospitals and in all locations where conditions are manifestly special, Clause (f) shall be observed.

(iii) Industrial premises are those used for commercial and light-manufacturing purposes.

(iv) For show-window lighting the size of conductors used should be determined on the assumption that not less than 200 watts will be required per lineal foot, measured along the base of the window.

(e) For more than four branch-circuits protected by over-current devices rated, or set, at not more than 15 amperes, the estimated current, in amperes, to be carried by their feeder, shall be the sum of the amperages of the connected loads of such circuits multiplied by the demand factor appropriate to the number of branch-circuits involved, in accordance with Table XV Clause (b) above. (See also Clause (a) above.)

(f) In cases in which branch-circuits other than those referred to in this Rule are involved and also wherever it is known, or is reasonably certain, that there will be little or no diversity, demand factors higher than those given in Clause (b) shall be used in computing the sizes of conductors. Such demand factors, if less than one hundred per cent (100%), shall be approved by the Inspection Department.

(g) If a conductor supply one or more circuits for electric ranges or other non-portable domestic electro-thermal apparatus, in addition to circuits of the type specified in Clause (e), its current-carrying capacity shall be the sum of the current values, obtained as required in this Rule, for the two types of circuits.

(h) In the case of circuits, installations and conditions other than those referred to above, a demand factor of one hundred per cent (100%) shall be employed unless special permission for the use of a smaller demand factor has been obtained.

Rule 605

(c) Conductors involved in a motor primary circuit or between a motor secondary and the controller shall have a current-carrying capacity not less than 125 per cent of the full-load current in such circuit. The secondary conductors between the controller and the secondary resistor shall have a current-carrying capacity not less than that given in the following Table.

SECTION 7—CONTROL EQUIPMENT FOR ELECTRIC CIRCUITS, MACHINES, AND APPARATUS

Rule 701

General

(a) Each feeder, branch-circuit (except lighting or appliance branch-circuit) or piece of electrical apparatus, except as otherwise provided for in this Section or in other Sections dealing with specific equipment, shall be provided with approved manually operable devices which safely disconnect all ungrounded conductors of the circuit simultaneously, at the point of supply. Such devices shall not be connected in any grounded conductor unless they simultaneously disconnect all ungrounded conductors. If used as service equipment, they shall not be connected in a grounded conductor in any case.

Rule 702

Control Apparatus

(a) Isolating switches, unless so located or guarded as to render them inaccessible to unauthorized persons, shall be so plainly marked as to reduce to a minimum the probability of their being opened under load.

(b) Knife switches which are rated at more than 600 amperes shall be used only as isolating switches. Currents above 600 amperes at any voltage shall be broken only by oil switches, circuit-breakers, or remotely controlled devices, approved for such interrupting duty.

(c) Knife switches, or other control devices, unless so located or guarded as to render them inaccessible to unauthorized persons, shall be of the externally operable type.

(d) Enclosed knife switches, other than isolating switches, used on d.c. circuits, or on a.c. circuits above 30 amperes, shall have quick-break mechanisms.

(e) Knife switches shall be mounted with their bases in a vertical plane. Single-throw knife switches shall be so mounted that their blades move in a vertical plane and that gravity will not tend to close them. Double-throw knife switches may be so mounted that the throw will be either vertical or horizontal but, if the throw be vertical, a positive locking device or stop shall be provided, so as to ensure the blades remaining in the open position when so set, unless it is not intended that the switch be left in the open position.

(f) Single-throw knife switches, circuit-breakers, or magnet switches, shall be so connected that the blades, or moving contacts, will be dead when the device is in the open position.

(g) Control devices, with the exception of isolating switches, shall be so located as to be readily accessible: remotely controlled devices will be considered as being readily accessible if the means of controlling them be so located. Isolating switches may be so located as to require the use of a hook stick to operate them.

(h) Control devices, unless they be so located or guarded as to render them inaccessible to unauthorized persons, and to prevent fire hazards, shall have all current carrying parts in either metal or fire-resistive enclosures.

(i) Manually operable control devices shall indicate the "on" and "off" positions, unless the application of the devices be such as to make this requirement unnecessary.

(j) Control devices used in combination with overcurrent devices or overload devices for the control of circuits or apparatus shall be so connected that the overcurrent or overload devices will be dead when the control device is in the open position.

Rule 703

Control of Circuits

(a) Control devices controlling feeders and branch-circuits shall be grouped where practicable.

(b) Control devices shall have a rating at least equal to the connected load of the circuit or circuits which they control. Snap switches used to control circuits supplying tungsten lamps, or mercury-vapour or luminous-discharge-tube lamps, and their transformers, shall have a rating at least twice that of such lamps or transformers unless the snap switches have a "T" rating, in which case the rating of the switch may be the same as that of such lamps or transformers.

Rule 704

Control of Apparatus

(a) Portable appliances rated at not more than 1320 watts and provided with approved cord connectors, attachment-plug caps or other approved means by which they may be readily disconnected from the circuit, need not be equipped with additional control devices.

(b) Switches used to control the same outlets from more than one point shall be so wired and connected that the grounded conductor runs directly to the outlets controlled thereby.

(c) Each generator shall be provided with an indicating switch or circuit-breaker by means of which the generator, together with all protective devices and control apparatus, may be entirely disconnected from the circuits which it supplies.

(d) Each motor shall be provided with proper starting equipment rated in h.p., and, except as otherwise provided for in this Rule, each motor with its starting equipment shall be controlled by a motor-circuit switch or a circuit-breaker which will disconnect all ungrounded conductors of the circuit, leaving the motor and entire starting equipment dead. A general-use switch or an isolating switch may be used in place of a motor-circuit switch for motors of more than 50 H.P.

(e) The motor circuit switch called for in Clause (d) shall have a h.p. rating not less than that of the motor. If a circuit-breaker, an isolating switch, or a general-use switch be used, it shall have a rating not less than 115 per cent of the name-plate current-rating of the motor.

(f) A single-pole motor-circuit switch may be used to control a 2-wire portable motor of not over ¼ h.p. operating at a potential not exceeding 150 volts.

(g) A switch as required by Clause (d) shall be installed on the supply side of each auto-transformer starter, but may be omitted in the case of other types of starters, if the motor starters disconnect all ungrounded conductors of the circuit, provided that the motor be supplied by a separate motor branch-circuit which is controlled by a motor-circuit switch.

(h) In the following cases one motor-circuit switch may serve a group of motors.

(1) If the motors drive several parts of a single machine or apparatus, such as metal and wood-working machines, etc., or cranes and hoists. (See Section 30).

(2) If a group of motors be under the protection of one set of over-current devices, as permitted in Rule 804 of this Code.

(i) If motors be started by means of switches which have both a starting and a running position, such switches shall be so designed that they cannot remain in the starting position.

(j) Each motor and its driven machinery shall be within sight of and not more than 30 ft. from the point from which the motor is controlled unless the controller, or motor-circuit switch, or circuit-breaker, is capable of being locked in the open position, or a manually operable switch which will prevent the starting of the motor is placed, with relation to the position of the motor, as outlined above. Such manually operable switch may be placed in the remote-control circuit of a remote-control type of controller.

(k) Remote-control circuits of remotely controlled apparatus shall be so arranged that they may be disconnected from the source of supply at the controller. If the disconnecting of the apparatus from the supply circuit also disconnects the remote-control circuit from the supply circuit, this requirement will be considered as fulfilled.

SECTION 8—PROTECTIVE EQUIPMENT FOR ELECTRIC CIRCUITS, MACHINES, AND APPARATUS

Rule 801

General

(a) Electrical conductors and apparatus shall, in general, be provided with approved devices for the purpose of automatically opening the electrical circuit if the current reaches a value which will produce an excessive or dangerous temperature in the conductor or apparatus.

Note: Such devices need not be provided for the protection of apparatus connected to lighting branch-circuits.

(b) Equipment used to control electric motors shall, where necessary, be provided with protective devices which will disconnect the motor from the supply circuit, in the event of failure of voltage in such circuit, as required in Rule 804.

Rule 802

Overcurrent Devices

(a) Over-current devices shall be located in readily accessible places and shall be grouped where practicable.

(b) Over-current devices shall be enclosed in cutout boxes or cabinets, unless they form a part of an approved assembly which affords equivalent protection, or unless mounted on switchboards, panelboards, or controllers located in rooms or enclosures free from easily ignitible material and dampness, and accessible only to authorized persons. Operating handles of circuit-breakers shall be made accessible without opening a door or cover giving access to live parts.

(c) Enclosures for over-current devices shall be mounted in a vertical position unless, in individual instances, this is shown to be impracticable.

(d) Individual over-current devices may be used at distribution centres if the number of lighting branch-circuits does not exceed four. At such centres, if the number of lighting branch-circuits exceed four, over-current devices protecting such circuits shall consist of an approved assembly in one approved cabinet. Panel-boards and enclosed branch-circuit cutouts shall be of the dead-front type.

Note: For the purpose of this requirement a 3-wire circuit shall be classed as two circuits.

(e) Plug fuses shall be used only on circuits not exceeding 150 volts, except that they may be used on any circuit having a grounded neutral if no conductor of the circuit exceed 150 volts to ground. Plug fuses shall be rated at not more than 30 amperes.

Note: Plug-fuse cutouts may be of the tamper-resisting type.

(f) Plug-fuse cutout bases shall be of the so-called "covered" type.

(g) Open-link fuses shall not be used.

(h) Except as indicated below, every circuit protected by fuses shall be equipped with approved means whereby all live parts for mounting fuses can be readily and safely made dead; such approved means shall be capable of interrupting the circuit load of such circuit.

Note: On switchboards such approved means may be omitted in the case of instrument and control circuits (0-250 volts) and of primary fuses of potential transformers.

*In the case of plug fuses, this requirement will be considered to be complied with as these can be safely handled while alive.

*The intent of the word "readily" in the Clause is that the means provided shall be near at hand, and in the case of fuses installed in a cabinet the "means" shall be within the cabinet.

It is recognized that it may be desirable for the Inspection Department to permit exceptions in specific instances, but the necessity of making installations safe for the workman as well as for the consumer must be kept in mind.

(i) Short-circuiting or bridging of fuses, or the use of anything but an approved fuse and fuseholder of proper rating is strictly prohibited.

Note: Inserting pieces of wire and metal in fuseholders, and filling of plug and cartridge fuses with other than the proper elements which are specially approved for the purpose, are violations of this requirement.

(j) Fuses shall not be used as over-current devices when the required rating of such devices exceeds 600 amperes.

(k) Except as provided for in Section 4 for services, a circuit-breaker shall have one pole in each ungrounded conductor and shall be so designed that when operated either manually or by the action of over-current, it will open the circuit in all ungrounded conductors.

Note: Over-current trip devices forming part of a circuit-breaker may be of the thermal or magnetic type with either time-delay or instantaneous trip.

(l) Branch-circuit breakers unless supplied as part of an approved switchboard and accessible only to authorized persons, shall be of such design that any alteration of either tripping current or time will be difficult.

Rule 803

Protection of Circuits

(a) Except as provided for below, every ungrounded conductor shall be protected by an overcurrent device at the point where it receives its supply of current and at any point where the size of conductor is decreased. Such protection may be omitted in the following cases:

(1) If an overcurrent device in a larger conductor properly protect the smaller.

(2) If the smaller conductor have a current-carrying capacity not less than the sum of the allowable current-carrying capacities of the conductors of the one or more circuits or loads which it supplies; is not over five feet long; does not extend beyond the switchboard, panelboard or device which it supplies and is enclosed in conduit, or in metal gutters when not a part of the switchboard, panelboard or other device.

(3) If circuits be for lighting and heating and if the smaller conductors have a current-carrying capacity at least 1/3 that of the setting of the circuit-breaker protecting the larger conductor from which they are supplied, and provided that the tap is suitably protected from mechanical injury, is not more than 25 ft. long and terminates in a single circuit-breaker which will limit the load on the tap to that allowed by Table VII. Beyond this point the conductors may supply any number of circuit-breakers.

(4) Fixture wire or flexible cord in sizes No. 16 or 18 B. & S. Gauge, and tinsel cord, shall be considered as protected by 15-ampere overcurrent devices.

(5) If the circuit be a motor branch-circuit with conductors having a current-carrying capacity at least 1/3 that of the conductors from which they are supplied and not over 25 feet long, provided that the conductors from which they are supplied are protected by fuses or by a time-limit circuit-breaker rated or set at not more than 400 per cent, or by an instantaneous circuit-breaker set at not more than 700 per cent, of the nameplate current-rating of the motor.

(6) If the circuit be a motor branch-circuit supplying a group of motors, then the requirements of 803 (f) shall apply.

(7) Conductors of control circuits of remotely controlled apparatus, less than 25 feet long, when suitably protected from mechanical injury. This omission may also be allowed in the case of longer conductors when the opening of the control circuit would create a hazard, as, for example, the control circuit of a fire-pump motor.

(b) No overcurrent device shall be placed in any neutral or grounded conductor of a circuit unless it form a part of an approved device which, in the event of overcurrent in such neutral or grounded conductor, will disconnect all the conductors of the circuit. (See Rule 701(a).)

(c) The rating or setting of overcurrent devices shall not exceed the allowable current-carrying capacity of the conductors which they protect as shown in Table VII, except as provided for in the case of motor branch-circuits (See Clauses 803(e) and (f)) and control circuits (See Clause 803(g)).

(d) Circuit-breakers shall be equipped with tripping elements as specified in Table XX.

Table XX

Over-Current Trip-Coils for Circuit-Breakers

| System | Number and Location of Over-Current Devices |
|---|---|
| 3-wire, 3-phase a.c. ungrounded | (a) 3 trip coils, one in each conductor if the circuit be served by transformers whose primaries are connected in Y, and with the neutral neither connected to the system nor grounded.(b) 2 trip coils, under all other conditions. Connect always in the same phases. |
| 3-wire, 3-phase a.c. with grounded neutral | 3 trip coils, one in each conductor. |
| 4-wire, 3-phase a.c. | 3 trip coils, one in each phase. |
| 4-wire, 2-phase a.c. ungrounded | 2 trip coils, one in each phase. |
| 3-wire, 2-phase a.c. | 2 trip coils, one in each outside conductor. |
| 4-wire, 2-phase a.c. with grounded neutral | 4 trip coils, one in each ungrounded conductor. |
| 5-wire, 2-phase a.c. | 4 trip coils, one in each ungrounded conductor. |
| 3-wire, 1-phase a.c. or d.c. | 2 trip coils, one in each outside conductor. |
| 2-wire a.c. or d.c. ungrounded or with one conductor grounded | 1 trip coil, in each ungrounded conductor. |
| 3-wire a.c. or d.c. with grounded neutral | 2 trip coils, one in each ungrounded conductor. |

Note: This requirement will not prevent the use of one single-pole circuit-breaker in each conductor for the protection of an ungrounded 2-wire circuit.

(e) The rating or setting of overcurrent devices used on motor branch-circuits supplying a single motor shall not exceed maximum values shown in Table XXI.

Cutout bases shall accommodate the largest size of fuse permitted by Table XXI for the circuit.

(f) The rating or setting of overcurrent devices used on motor branch-circuits supplying a group of motors shall not exceed the maximum values shown in Table XXI for the size of conductor for the largest motor used, plus the total full-load amperes of the remaining motors.

Example: Using the same group of motors as in the Example given in Rule 605 (d):
Maximum fusing allowed by Column 8, Table XXI for 64 amps. (Full load of 25 h.p., 3 phase, 220 volt)..... 250 amps.
Total full-load amps. of remaining motors 64 amps.

Total..... 314 amps.

As the nearest standard fuse is rated at 300 amps., fuses of that capacity would be required. If a time-element circuit-breaker is to be used, its capacity shall be such as will allow for a setting equal to the value required above for fuses.

| More than 50 h.p. | 150 | 175 | 150 |

Notes:

*(1) The ratings of fuses for the protection of motor branch circuits as given in Table XXI are based upon fuse ratings appearing in the Table above, which also specifies the maximum settings of circuit-breakers for the protection of motor branch-circuits.

(2) Synchronous motors of the low-torque low-speed type (usually 450 r.p.m. or lower) such as are used to drive reciprocating compressors, pumps, etc., and which start up unloaded, do not require a fuse rating or circuit-breaker setting in excess of 200% of full-load current.

(g) Conductors of control circuits of remotely controlled apparatus, when over 25 ft. long, shall, except as otherwise provided for in Rule 803 (a), (7), be protected by over-current devices rated or set at not more than three hundred per cent (300%) of their allowable current-carrying capacity and shall be installed in conduit or otherwise suitably protected from mechanical injury.

Rule 804

Protection of Apparatus

(a) Constant-potential generators, whether d.c. or a.c., other than exciters for a.c. machines, shall be protected from excessive current by overcurrent devices; provided, however, that if the type of apparatus used and the nature of the system operated make protective devices inadvisable or unnecessary, their omission may be permitted by the Inspection Department.

Note: If an a.c. generator and a transformer be intended to operate as a unit for stepping the voltage up or down, and both be located in the same building, the protective device may be connected to either the primary or the secondary of the transformer.

(b) If a generator, not electrically driven, supply a 2-wire grounded system, the protective device shall be capable of disconnecting the generato from both conductors of the circuit.

(c) Three-wire d.c. systems supplied by 2-wire generators operated in conjunction with balancer sets to obtain neutrals, shall be equipped with protective devices which will disconnect the 3-wire system in case of excessive unbalancing of voltages.

(d) Three-wire d.c. generators, whether shunt or compound wound, shall be equipped with protective devices (one on each armature lead) so connected as to be actuated by the entire armature current. Such protective device shall consist of either a 2-pole circuit-breaker with two tripping elements, or of a 4-pole circuit-breaker connected in the main and equalizer leads and tripped by two tripping elements, one in each armature lead.

(e) Motors, except as specifically provided for in Clauses (g), (h) and (i), shall be protected by individual overcurrent devices as shown in Table XXI.

(f) For motors having larger full-load current ratings than those given in Table XXI, calculations for the rating or setting of overcurrent devices shall be made on the same basis as that used in the compilation of the Table.

(g) No overload protection need be supplied for a motor of 1 h.p. or less if the motor branch-circuit be properly protected and the motor be visible from its starting device.

(h) Two or more single-phase or d.c. motors each having a rating not greater than ¼ h.p. at 220 volts or less may be grouped under the protection of a single set of overcurrent devices, provided that the rating or setting of the overcurrent device does not exceed 15 amps. and the total load on the circuit does not exceed 1650 volt-amperes.

(i) Two or more motors, each protected by an overload device approved for group fusing, may be connected to a branch-circuit protected by a single set of fuses or an instantaneous circuit-breaker rated in accordance with Rule 803 (f) provided that the rating of the fuse does not exceed the maximum capacity as indicated on the smallest capacity of overload device used.

(j) Motors rated at more than 1 h.p. shall be provided with individual overload devices, except in cases where it is not practicable to obtain proper overload protection, when such overload devices may be omitted if the motors be protected by an individual overcurrent device as required by Table XXI.

(k) Except as provided for in Clauses (h) and (i), overload devices which will not provide proper protection in the case of a short-circuit, shall have connected in series with them fuses or time-limit circuit-breakers, rated or set at not more than four hundred per cent (400%) of the motor full-load current, or instantaneous circuit-breakers set at not more than seven hundred per cent (700%) of the motor full-load current.

(l) Overcurrent devices or overload devices providing running protection of motors shall be rated, or set, at values not greater than those shown in Table XXI.

(m) If fuses be used for motor running protection there shall be one in each ungrounded conductor.

(n) If overcurrent devices or overload devices other than fuses be used for the running protection of motors, the minimum allowable number and the location of tripping elements shall be as shown in Table XXVII.

SECTION 9—GROUNDING

(For Grounding of Class 2 Communication Systems see Rule 6003—See also Rules 3003 (a), 3201 (d) Note; 3202 (n); 3203 (n); 3301 (i); 3401 (h) and 3501 (k).

Rule 901

What to Ground

(a) All electrical equipment, specified below under "Conductors", "Equipment" and "Exposed Non-current-carrying Metal Parts" shall be grounded, except circuits operating at 50 volts or less if supplied from transformers energized at not more than 150 volts to ground and neither exposed to probability of crossover from higher voltage circuits, nor installed outdoors.

Rule 902

Conductors

(a) One conductor of all a.c. systems, and of services taken therefrom, if the maximum difference of potential between the conductors to be grounded and any other point on the circuit do not exceed 150 volts, as follows:

Table XXVIII

Conductors to be Grounded

(See "Neutral Conductors"—Rule 603 (e))

| System | | | Conductor or Point to be Grounded |
|---|---|---|---|
| Single-phase 2-wire below 150 volts | | | The identified conductor at the service box, otherwise either conductor. |
| Single-phase 2-wire between 150 and 300 volts | | | The neutral point of the transformer-secondary. |
| Single-phase 3-wire | | | The neutral conductor |
| 2 and 3 phase | If only one phase be used if not more than 150 volts to ground. | If neutral be used in single phase. | The neutral conductor |
| | | If no neutral be used in single phase. | That conductor of the single phase which will establish on the system the lowest maximum voltage to ground. |
| | OtherwiseIf any conductor be not more than 150 volts to ground. | | That conductor of the system which will establish on the system the lowest maximum voltage to ground. |

Note: It will conduce to the securing of effective grounding of low-potential a.c. systems if all neutrals be of ample cross-sectional area and be as far as practicable solidly inter-connected throughout the system. This will place the ground connections in parallel and materially lower the resistance to ground. Such practice is strongly recommended.

(b) Neutrals of 3-wire d.c. systems.

Note: See Rule 906 (c).

(c) Negatives of 2-wire d.c. systems at potentials not exceeding 300 volts, if exposed to leakage or induction from high-potential conductors.

Note: In the case of 2-wire d.c. systems with potentials between wires exceeding 300 volts, grounding is not permitted unless a neutral point can be established such that the difference of potential between the neutral and any other point on the system does not exceed 300 volts, in which case such point may be grounded.

(d) One (either) conductor of the secondary circuits of current and potential transformers of less than 750 volts, unless isolated, run in grounded conduit or other suitable duct, or identified and guarded as required for conductors of the highest voltage to which they are exposed through transformer windings or otherwise.

(e) No Supply Authority shall connect or re-connect to any a.c. supply any installation having one conductor grounded at the service box unless such supply has a corresponding conductor that is grounded, and, if the supply service be d.c., no Supply Authority shall connect it to a consumer's installation having a conductor which is grounded, or accidentally connected to the general mass of the earth. (See Rule 906 (c)).

(f) The Inspection Department may, in any section of the area under its jurisdiction, require that ground connections at individual services be omitted if it be known to the Inspection Department to be impracticable to obtain, within such section, the resistance to ground required by this Code. No action, taken under this Clause, shall waive any requirement of this Code in relation to the identification of conductors or the polarization of fittings. (See Rule 910 (e)).

Note: It is recommended that in industrial establishments portable lamps and portable tools which are to be used in conductive locations be operated at 32 volts through the use of stepdown transformers having separate secondaries, thus obviating the need for grounding such portable equipment.

(b) Service-boxes, metal raceways, wireways, busways and auxiliary gutters and metal sheathing and armouring of cable.

Note: This requirement need not be observed in the case of isolated sections of metal raceways, metal-sheathed cable or armoured cable, of less than 25 ft. in length if the potential between any two conductors does not exceed 300 volts, if they be either out of reach from, or are guarded from, other grounded objects, including the earth, and if they be insulated from ground. Similarly, metal cleats, clips, saddles, clamps, etc., used for fixing cables need not be grounded.

(e) If there be an objectionable flow of current through a grounding-conductor, due to the use of multiple grounds, one or other of the following means of correcting this condition shall be adopted—

(1) One or more of such grounds shall be abandoned; or

(2) The location of the grounds shall be changed; or

(3) The continuity of the common grounding-conductor connecting individual grounding-conductors shall be suitably interrupted; or

Note: See "High Potential Installations"—Rule 5002 (h).

 The phrase "if there be one" is intended to apply to existing* systems. Systems to be built in the future are required by the Rules to have an identified conductor, hence the phrase will not apply to the latter.

Gauge may be used for grounding a service conductor supplying an installation in which knob-and-tube wiring is employed if the service conductor be not larger than No. 10. Rule 910

Ground-electrodes

(a) Grounding shall, wherever practicable, be made by direct connection to a ground consisting of a metallic water-piping system as provided for in Rule 908.

If grounding to a metallic water-piping system, used for public supply, be not possible, connection shall be made either to a metallic water-piping system used for private supply, or to metallic well-casings, or piping connected thereto, if available.

If a ground consisting of a metallic water-piping system be not available, a grounded neutral grid having grounding system characteristics shall be used if available.

If none of the above methods be practicable, connection shall be made to one or more grounds which shall meet the requirements of a grounding system.

(b) For the grounding of exposed non-current-carrying metal parts of electrical equipment, if none of the above methods be practicable, connection shall be made to grounded rails or grounded conductors of electric railway circuits, if available; but such connections shall not be used as a means of grounding for interior wiring circuits other than those supplied from the railway circuit itself.

(c) Gas-pipes and gas mains shall not be used as ground-electrodes except at electrical stations for private supply. Connections shall be made on the street side of the meter.

(d) Gas-piping may be used as a ground electrode for the non-current-carrying metal parts of electrical equipment installed on, and in conjunction with, gas appliances or gas-piping systems. Where gas-piping is so utilized it shall be bonded from the consumer's side of the gas meter to the water-piping system. If no water-piping system be available, a bonding jumper shall be connected around the gas meter and an artificial ground established. Gas-piping need not be insulated from otherwise well grounded electrical equipment used as an auxiliary to gas appliances, etc.

(e) The ground resistance of a grounding system shall not exceed 6 ohms wherever practicable.

The resistance to ground obtained by a ground-electrode where practicable shall not exceed 25 ohms.

Note: If individual connections to earth be supplemented by other ground-electrodes at the same point by being connected thereto to produce the required ground resistance of 25 ohms or less, the combination shall be covered by this Rule.

(f) Ground-electrodes shall be embedded, or shall extend, below permanent moisture level, and shall be placed, or driven, below basement floor wherever practicable. If no basement exists, care shall be taken that the ground-electrode is installed, or driven, outside the area of recently disturbed soil.

Recommendations

(1) Municipal and other authorities operating and controlling underground metallic water-piping systems are urged to permit the grounding of electric circuits and exposed non-current-carrying metal parts of electrical equipment by means of their systems where grounding is performed in accordance with these Rules, since such grounding offers the most efficient protection to life and property and is not injurious to the piping systems.

(2) It is strongly recommended that all grounds be tested at the time of installation and periodically (say every 5 years) thereafter; also that all ground connections be inspected at the time of installation and periodically thereafter. Proper records of these tests and inspections should be kept.

| In front | 36 |
| On at least one side of a single panel | 18 |
| On the sides of a bank of panels | 18 |
| Behind the apparatus on the back of a panel | 24 |

Note: This clause is not intended to forbid the enclosing of the rear of control panels in steel cabinets but the provision of such enclosure shall not alter the application of the Rule.

(c) An electric system having a rated (system or circuit) voltage in excess of 300 volts d.c. or a.c. shall have no part used for any control or operating circuit. Circuits of higher rated (system or circuit) voltage may, however, be used for the operation of motors, provided that all operating and signal wiring is thoroughly insulated from such power circuits and all machine frames and hand-ropes are grounded.

(d) A manually-operated multi-pole isolating switch shall be installed in the main power-supply line of each electric elevator machine or motor-generator set. This switch shall be located adjacent to and visible from the elevator machine or motor-generator set. No provision shall be made for closing the switch from any other part of the building. When practicable, this switch shall be located in the machine room at the lock-jamb side of the entrance door.

(e) Each drum type electric elevator (on which the lifting cables are positively anchored to the hoisting drum) driven by a polyphase motor shall be provided with a device which will prevent starting the motor if,—

Rule 3102

Conductors and Conduit

(See Rule 501)

(a) Elevator circuits shall, in general, be run in rigid conduit. The conduit shall be equipped with approved terminal fittings having a single bushed opening for each conductor up to four in number. The conduit shall terminate as close to the conductor terminals as convenience will permit, but in no case shall the point of termination be nearer than 6 inches to the floor.

Note: The foregoing does not apply to signal wires receiving energy from either primary batteries or bell-ringing transformers.

(b) The conductors between motors and control panel may be carried either in rigid conduit or separately supported on insulators or may be cabled together and taped or corded over all and finished with a suitable compound so as to form a rigid self-supporting cable. This cable shall not be more than (approximately) 3 ft. long and shall not be subjected to a temperature in excess of 50 deg. C. (122 deg. F.).

(c) Conductors in elevator hoistways (exclusive of the travelling cables used as flexible connections between the car and the rigid conduit system) shall be run in rigid conduit, except that either flexible conduit or armoured-cable may be used between riser and limit switch, interlocks, push-buttons or similar devices. Conductors and travelling cables where attached to the car shall be run in rigid conduit or metal raceways. Short runs of flexible conduit or armoured-cable on the elevator car may be used provided that they are securely fastened. Split tees and elbows may be used on exposed conduit work, except where the conduit contains feeders.

Note: For control circuits in conduit, see Table X. Rule 601.

(d) Conductors for elevator circuits—including operating, light, control and power conductors, and signal wires if these be an integral part of the wiring system—may be run in the same travelling cable or conduit system if the supply be taken from the same source of power. This may be done even though the voltage be altered within the system from the elevator power supply circuit, provided that all the conductors are insulated for the maximum voltage found in the conduit system and that the installation as a whole is insulated from ground for this maximum voltage.

(e) Conductors of car-lighting circuits and of signal systems, if these be not an integral part of the elevator wiring system, shall be kept separate and run in separate travelling cables and raceways.

(f) The flexible or travelling cables of the operating control and lighting circuits shall be Type "E" cord having a braid which is both flame-retarding and moisture-proofed.

(i) Conductors, or groups of conductors, used for the operating and pilot circuits of elevator controllers, shall have an insulating, absorption-resisting, flame-retarding covering specially approved for this service.

Note: Until such coverings have been approved, rubber-covered conductors will be accepted.

For the particular service intended this requirement takes precedence over Rule 501 (j).

Rule 3201

General

(a) The requirements of this Section apply to locations in which the Inspection Department judges the apparatus and wiring to be subject to the condition indicated by the classifications applying thereto, and shall be considered to be additional to or amendatory of the requirements of other Sections in this Code covering ordinary installations.

(b) The intent of this Section is to require a form of construction of equipment and of installation that will ensure safe performance under conditions of proper use and maintenance. It is, therefore, assumed that users will exercise more than ordinary care with regard to installation and maintenance.

(c) In general it is desirable to reduce to a minimum the amount of electrical equipment used in hazardous locations, by installing therein only such equipment as is essential for the processes being carried on. Service equipment, panelboards, switchboards, etc., shall, where practicable, be located in rooms or sections of the building in which hazardous conditions do not prevail.

(d) If walls and partitions, floors and ceilings, be used to form hazard-free rooms or sections they shall be of substantial construction, built of or lined with incombustible material and shall ensure that such rooms or sections will remain free from hazards. When communicating with a hazardous area, fire-resisting substantially dust-tight self-closing doors may be permitted in Class II, III, and IV locations.

Note: It is recommended that static electricity be removed by permanent ground wires from such machines as would otherwise accumulate a charge, and from belts by means which do not embody any device or process which is liable to produce arcing or sparking save in a vacuum or some suitable enclosure.

Rule 3202

Class I Locations

Note: Class I locations are those in which flammable volatile liquids, highly flammable gases, mixtures (such as polishing pastes, etc.) or other highly flammable substances are manufactured, used, handled, or stored in other than their original containers.

. This Class may include such locations as some parts of dry-cleaning and dry-dyeing plants, spray-painting establishments, flammable-gas plants, varnish manufacturing plants, distilleries, rectifying and blending plants producing whiskey and other alcoholic beverage liquors, plants producing industrial alcohol, and establishments or industries involving similar hazardous processes or conditions.

Note: For Rules relating to Service or Filling Stations see Section 33.

(a) In locations judged to be as described for Class I the following provisions shall be observed:

(b) No service equipment, switchboard or panelboard shall be installed unless it be of a type approved for use in explosive atmospheres.

(c) Wiring shall be enclosed in rigid conduit with explosion-proof joints and fittings.

Conduit, unless it be of the seamless type, shall not be bent in the field; conduit bends shall be so labelled or marked as to show that they have been approved for use in explosive atmospheres.

If it be necessary to use flexible connections, as at motor terminals, approved flexible fittings of the explosion-proof type shall be used.

At points where conduit terminates in an enclosure in which arcing or sparking is likely to occur, such as at motor terminals, switch boxes and the like, and wherever conduit runs from a hazardous to a non-hazardous location, the conduit shall be sealed off by a sealing compound approved for the purpose, which is not affected by the surrounding atmosphere or liquids and which will not soften below 93 deg. C. (200 deg. F.). The sealing compound shall have a thickness of not less than 5/8 in.

Joints in rigid conduit made with threaded couplings shall have at least 5 threads engaged.

Rubber-covered conductors, including those used for lighting-fixtures, shall have a thickness of rubber not less than 3/64 in.

(d) Circuit-breakers shall be of a type approved for use in explosive atmospheres. Fuses shall not be installed unless mounted within explosion-proof enclosures. The cutout bases and their enclosures shall be approved as unit devices for use in explosive atmospheres.

The vault shall be provided with ample ventilation to remove hazardous vapours and with explosion-relief ducts. All vents and ducts shall be of reinforced concrete and this shall extend to a safe location outside the building. There shall be no opening from the vault to the interior of the building.

Note: It is recommended that transformers and capacitors be located outside of the building proper and when so placed shall be so far away from explosive gases and vapours that a burn-out would not ignite them. The latter principle is applicable to loading docks and tank farms.

Transformers and capacitors containing a liquid that will not burn in air may be:

(1) located within the hazardous area provided that they have explosion-proof enclosures; or

(2) installed so as, in effect, to be removed from the hazardous location.

(f) Motors and generators shall be of types approved for use in explosive atmospheres.

(g) Devices or apparatus such as motor controllers, thermal cutouts, switches, relays, the switches and contactors of auto-transformer starters, resistance or impedance devices, which tend to create arcs, sparks, or high temperatures, shall not be installed unless such devices or apparatus are of a type approved for use in explosive atmospheres. Switches, controllers and other equipment requiring manual operation shall be externally operable.

Note: It is recommended that, where practicable, such equipment be located outside of the hazardous area (see Rule 3201-d) and that where, as in the case of motor controllers, it is necessary that the equipment be controlled from a point inside the hazardous area, a suitable form of explosion-proof master switch be located inside the area to effect the operation of the equipment.

(h) Electric heating appliances shall be of a type approved for the particular location.

(i) Switches controlling lighting circuits shall not be installed unless they are of a type approved for use in explosive atmospheres.

(j) Electrical equipment shall be so marked as to indicate that it has been approved for use in explosive atmospheres.

(k) Sufficient general illumination shall be provided by fixed lighting units to eliminate, so far as is practicable, the need for portable lamps. Both fixed and portable lamps shall be enclosed in a manner approved for explosive atmospheres and shall be protected against breakage where necessary by approved types of guards. Lampholders shall not be of the pendant type unless supported by and supplied through hangers of rigid conduit, or flexible connectors of a type approved for use in explosive atmospheres. Rigidly mounted fixtures shall be strongly supported. Lampholders for portable lamps shall be of the moulded-composition, keyless type with no exposed metal parts.

Portable lamps shall operate,—

(1) from ungrounded low-voltage circuits having inherent current-limiting characteristics; or

(2) if of the line-voltage type shall be so designed that grounded non-current-carrying metal parts will not form a path to earth through other grounded metal with which the assembly may be in contact.

(l) Where flexible cord is required for portable lamps, etc., it shall be of Type "S" and shall contain one extra insulated conductor to form a grounding connection for metal lamp guards, motor frames, and all other exposed metal portions of portable lamps and devices.

Cords connected directly to supply conductors shall be securely supported so that the probability of a break in the conductors at this point will be minimized.

(m) Receptacles and attachment plugs shall be so connected as a part of an approved unit device with an explosion-proof interlocking switch that the plug cannot be removed while the switch is in the "on" position, or approved devices in which the current is broken in an explosion-proof enclosure shall be used. Such receptacles and plugs shall be of the polarized type which automatically provides a connection for the grounding conductor for the flexible cord.

(n) The exposed non-current-carrying metal parts of equipment, fixed or portable appliances, fixtures, cabinets, cases, and conduit shall be grounded.

(o) There shall be no exposed live parts.

Spray Booths

(p) Electrical apparatus, except as to modifications allowed in Clauses (s), (t) and (u) shall be in strict accordance with the foregoing Clauses of this Rule. However, such special electrical equipment may be required beyond the area defined in Clause (s) if the occupancy, other than spraying, is such as to create an extension of this hazardous area. Inspection Departments shall be consulted as to the limits of the areas and locations where electrical apparatus shall conform to the Rules covering Class I locations.

(q) Where practicable, the use of portable lamps shall be avoided. If conditions be such that fixed lighting will not satisfactorily produce sufficient illumination on the object being sprayed, then a portable lamp wired with 3-conductor Type "S" cord (one conductor to be used for grounding non-current-carrying metal parts) and approved for the location, may be used, provided that it is securely mounted on a standard or pedestal, which in turn is securely fastened to a heavy base at least 16 in. in diameter.

Note: The object of the foregoing is to minimize breakage of lamps due to accidental upsetting.

(r) No lamps, motors, or electric varnish-heaters shall be located inside spray booths, hoods, or ducts, or in any location where there is a possibility of the spray coming into direct contact with the above-mentioned equipment.

(s) Lamps and motors shall not be located within a distance of 20 ft. from the face of a spray booth, unless they conform to Rules 3202 (t) and 3202 (u).

(t) Motors within the location defined in Clause (s) shall be of one of the following types:

(1) The type approved for use in explosive atmospheres.

(2) Any approved enclosed type.

Where magnetic separators are used in conjunction with grinding of grain, starch, sugar or other similar materials, it is recommended that the grinder motor control be so inter-locked with the magnet circuit of the separator that the motor cannot be energized if the magnet circuit is open. Motor controls for grinders should be so located with reference to exits that the machine may be shut down in the event of explosion or fire, without danger to the operator.*

(g) Batteries shall be located in rooms or spaces having natural means of ventilation.

SECTION 50—HIGH POTENTIAL INSTALLATIONS

Rule 5001

General

(a) This Section shall apply to installations operating at potentials above 750 volts.

(b) This Section shall not be taken to apply to any equipment in connection with X-ray and high frequency installations, nor to equipment used for sign or outline lighting, radio or signalling.

(c) The requirements of this Section shall be considered to be additional to or amendatory of the general requirements of this Code.

(d) Service conductors up to 7500 volts, and all other conductors operating at more than 7500 volts between conductors, shall, if within buildings, be installed only in such occupancies as central stations; sub-stations; electrical equipment vaults; or in fire-resisting motor or generator rooms; or by special permission in fire-resisting buildings. (See Rule 5002 (1).)

Rule 5002

Conductors

(a) Wiring may be either single or multiple conductor and except as permitted in Clauses (b), (c) and (d) below, shall be sheathed with a lead or other approved absorption-resisting covering and shall be either armoured or installed in rigid conduit or flexible conduit or duct.

Where single-conductor cables are completely encircled by magnetic material all cables shall be grouped within the same enclosure.

Approved terminal facilities shall be provided to protect cables from hazards due to moisture.

(b) For line potentials not exceeding 5000 volts, conductors having approved insulation without absorption-resisting metallic sheathing, may be installed in rigid and flexible conduit in normally dry locations where there is no risk of flooding.

(c) Insulated cables approved for the voltage involved, and without a conducting sheath, may, by special permission, be employed in central stations, sub-stations, fireproof generator and motor rooms, and transformer vaults, up to 5000 volts between phases, without limitation as to clearances.

(d) Bare conductors may by special permission be employed in central stations, sub-stations, generator and motor rooms, and transformer and electrical equipment vaults.

(e) Conductors shall be mounted on approved supports at intervals not exceeding 4½ ft., and bare conductors shall be spaced as follows:

Table XXXIV

Minimum Spacings for Bare High-potential Conductors

| Voltage | Minimum Distance between Live Parts Inches | Minimum Distances from Live Parts to Adjacent Surfaces exclusive of Conductor Supports Inches |
|---|---|---|
| 751– 2,500 | 6 | 3 |
| 2,501– 7,500 | 8 | 6 |
| 7,501–15,000 | 12 | 9 |

(f) Where a cable issues from its lead sheath, the insulation of the conductors shall be thoroughly protected from moisture and mechanical injury by a pothead or equivalent device.

(g) In normally dry locations, if splices or taps be required between lengths of rubber-covered lead-sheathed cable, the lead sheath need not be continuous over such splices or taps. The ends of the sheaths shall be belled out and bonded together around the splice by copper wire having a current-carrying capacity not less than that of the sheath, and ground clamps and in no case less than No. 6 B. & S. Gauge. Splices shall be thoroughly insulated.

(h) Lead-covering, metal armour, conduit, and fittings shall be thoroughly bonded together and grounded.

(i) Electrical equipment shall be inaccessible to unauthorized persons.

A permanent warning notice shall be placed in a conspicuous position forbidding anyone to work on any live equipment unless protected by approved insulated or insulating appliances, such as tongs, rubber gloves, boots, mats, etc. Such appliances shall always be maintained in proper condition for use.

(j) High-potential conductors shall not be installed in elevator hoistways, but may be installed in conduit embedded in the masonry walls of hoistways. (See Rule 5002 (l).)

(k) Service conductors, except as provided in the next succeeding paragraph, shall be single or multiple-conductor lead-covered cable. If not underground they shall either be armoured or run in conduit. If underground, an approved duct may be used.

Overhead service conductors may, by special permission, be carried into buildings through approved leading-in devices or in some other approved manner. Such conductors shall be so located or guarded as to be inaccessible from the ground and from any window, balcony or similar point.

Conductors used for services shall be not smaller than No. 6 B. & S. Gauge unless they are lead-covered. If lead-covered, conductors shall be not smaller than No. 8 B. & S. Gauge.

(l) Service and other conductors which are installed in conduit or ducts run beneath a building or within a wall of concrete or brick shall be considered as being outside the building when the conduit or duct is surrounded throughout its run by not less than 2 in. of concrete or brick.

(m) In the case of one or more transformers supplying only buildings under the same ownership the primary conductors may be considered as service conductors if the current-carrying capacity of the secondary conductors be greater than that of the largest approved service box. Under the foregoing conditions the high-potential service equipment shall be accessible only to authorized persons, but the service circuit-breaker shall be operable by the consumer and from within the building served.

Note: These requirements may be satisfied either by a remote control circuit-breaker or by some suitable means which will trip the circuit-breaker from within the building served.

(n) Closely grouped open conductors with insulating coverings subject to arcs or heat due to short-circuits in nearby conductors, shall have a flame-retarding outer covering. The coverings of such conductors shall be stripped back from terminals a sufficient distance to prevent leakage.

Control and Overcurrent Protection

(a) Every service shall be equipped with an oil-immersed circuit-breaker which shall be installed as close as possible to the service entrance and arranged to control all ungrounded conductors of the service. The circuit-breaker shall have a rupturing capacity approved by the Supply Authority, and shall be fitted with protective devices in accordance with Table XX, Rule 803, which shall be adjusted to the satisfaction of the Supply Authority and of the Inspection Department; they shall be of the trip-free type and shall incorporate a device indicating whether they are open or closed. Fuses in conjunction with a non-automatic oil switch may be used where the conditions outlined in Rule 5003 (h) are complied with.

Provided that when the total load on the service consists solely of transformers and the service equipment is installed in a vault, the service circuit-breaker may be omitted when either of the alternatives permitted by Subclauses 1 and 2 hereof are provided.

(1) If the primary voltage does not exceed 25,000 volts and the total load does not exceed 200 k.v.a. per phase, a non-automatic oil switch and suitable fuses may be installed.

(2) If the primary voltage does not exceed 5,000 volts and the total load does not exceed 100 k.v.a. per phase, suitable fuses may be installed.

(b) At service entrances isolating switches shall be provided on the supply side of the circuit-breaker as close as possible to the service entrance.

Isolating switches of air-break type shall be installed on each primary service conductor ahead of circuit-breakers or switches, except in cases where the service control consists of enclosed removable truck panels or metal-clad switch-gear units so arranged that when they are removed from their normal position the circuit-breaker or switch will be automatically disconnected from all live-parts.

Where the fuses permitted by Sub-clauses 1 and 2 of Clause 5003 (a) are of a type which may be operated as an isolating switch, they may serve as isolating switches if they completely disconnect all other service equipment from the source of supply.

If the service be not over 5,000 volts and be installed in a transformer vault under the sole control of the Supply Authority, the requirements for isolating switches may by special permission be fulfilled by means of a disconnecting pothead.

(c) Oil circuit-breakers for voltages above 5,000 volts shall be isolated from other apparatus when practicable, and be outside the vaults containing the transformers they are used to control. Where series trip-coils are used they shall be suitably guarded. Oil circuit-breakers, if mounted in a closed compartment, shall be provided with means to indicate whether the breaker is open or closed. They shall comply with one of the following:

(1) They shall be mounted, remote from the control panel in a fireproof switch room, motor room, or in a vault complying with Rule 5004; oil circuit-breakers above 15,000 volts shall be installed only in a vault complying with Rule 5004; or

(2) They shall be of metal-enclosed type such as metal-clad switch gear, trucks, cubicles, and switch houses.

(d) At locations other than those at the service entrance, isolating switches shall be installed ahead of circuit-breakers or switches except in cases where the control consists of enclosed removable truck panels or metal-clad switch gear units so arranged that when they are removed from their normal position the circuit-breaker or switch will be automatically disconnected from all live parts.

(e) Barriers shall be provided on each side of each pole of isolating switches wherever used, unless they are so "interlocked" that they cannot be operated under load; notices warning against wrongful operation shall be installed nearby.

(f) Isolating switches, of air-break type, whether located at a service-entrance point or elsewhere, shall be accessible to qualified persons only.

(g) Each transformer or bank of transformers operating as a unit, except instrument transformers, and each other operating unit of apparatus and each conductor of branch circuits shall be protected from over-current by a manually-operable circuit-breaker which will interrupt all ungrounded conductors, except as provided in Clause 5003 (h). Potential instrument-transformers shall be protected in the primary circuit by a fuse rated at not more than 3 amperes.

Note: It is recommended that external resistors be connected in series with the primary windings of potential instrument-transformers of high-potential rating, in order to limit the possible short-circuit current to a value which can safely be interrupted by the fuse.

(h) Oil-filled or other suitable types of fuses may be used on circuits not exceeding 2,500 volts to ground and rated at not more than 300 amperes or not exceeding 15,000 volts between phases and 100 amperes, for the following purposes:

(1) For the protection of individual feeder or branch-circuits at the point where they receive their supply. If there be more than one such circuit, there shall be a manually operable circuit-breaker between the point of origin of such circuits and the source of supply.

(2) For the protection of individual transformers, or banks of transformers operating as a unit when such transformers are supplied by a common feeder, provided that such feeder, at the point where it receives its supply, be protected by a manually operable or remote control circuit-breaker. The circuit supplying a single transformer or bank of transformers need not have circuit-breaker protection.

(3) For the protection of other classes of apparatus by special permission.

(i) Fusible cutouts shall be so installed that the blowing of the fuse will not result in injury to persons or damage to other equipment. They shall be accessible to qualified persons only.

(j) Where oil-immersed isolating switches are used, they shall be mechanically, or electrically, interlocked with the circuit-breaker, or circuit-breakers, so that it will not be possible to open or close the isolating switch unless the circuit-breaker, or circuit-breakers, be open.

Oil-immersed isolating switches shall be provided with a position indicator operating from the contact bars or, alternatively, with inspection ports, such that the position of contacts can be seen.

Rule 5004

Vaults for High-potential Installations

(a) The walls and roof of vaults shall consist of reinforced concrete not less than 6 in. in thickness or of brick not less than 8 in. or of load-bearing hollow tile not less than 12 in. in thickness coated on the inside with cement plaster; except that if the total transformer capacity so enclosed be not more than 100 k.v.a., reinforced concrete 4 in. thick may be employed by special permission. Where practicable, the outside walls of the building, if of standard vault construction, should form one of the walls of the vault.

No material or equipment of any kind, including air ducts, gas lines, water, steam or solvent line, shall pass through or terminate within a vault, other than that essential to the transformer installation or to its proper operation and safety.

(b) Vaults shall be thoroughly ventilated by a chimney or flue, leading out of doors, of such size as will prevent the development of room temperatures in excess of those at which the transformers installed therein may be safely operated. Limiting temperatures shall be determined in accordance with the requirements of Supply Authorities and

Inspection Departments. All ventilating openings not connected to chimneys or flues shall be provided with automatic or manually controlled dampers.

Inlet for fresh air shall be provided by a flue or iron pipe leading from the outside air, where feasible, and terminating in the compartment at a point not more than 3 ft. above floor level. When ventilated from within the building, openings shall have heat-actuated automatic dampers.

Note: It is recommended that damper control be arranged to be operated from a point outside the vault.

(c) Suitable means of draining the vault shall be provided in order that any accumulation of oil or water may be conveniently carried off. Floor and drain shall have a slope of not less than ¼ in. per ft. From vaults containing transformers having a total capacity of 100 kva. or less, the drain may be omitted if the enclosure be so constructed as to retain all the oil, in the event of leakage from the transformer, within the vault.

(d) Unless access be from outside the building only, the doorway to the vault shall be thoroughly closed by means of a tight-fitting approved fire-door (Class "A" door and hardware—Underwriters Laboratories Inc.). A door sill not less than 4 in. in height shall be provided. In all cases the sill shall be of sufficient height to confine within the vault the oil from the largest transformer installed therein.

(e) The vault shall be provided with an adequate lighting system controlled by a switch suitably located near the entrance to the vault, preferably outside.

(f) The door of the vault shall be provided with a substantial lock, so that only authorized persons will have access to the vault.

(g) Transformers supplying electric furnaces in electric furnace rooms of fireproof construction may be installed without a vault if provided with a concrete basin having curbs not less than 6 in. in height on the inside surface and of dimensions sufficient to retain all the oil used in the transformers. There shall be no other combustible material in the vicinity of such transformers.

SECTION 51—X-RAY AND HIGH-FREQUENCY INSTALLATIONS

High-voltage Guarding

(a) Mechanical barriers to prevent too close approach to any high-voltage parts of X-ray apparatus, except the X-ray tube and its leads, shall be provided unless such high-voltage parts be rendered shock-proof by being shielded by grounded metal or approved insulating material. High-voltage generators operating at 300 peak kv. or more shall be installed in rooms separate from those containing the other equipment. A suitable switch shall be provided to control the circuit supplying the generator, and it shall be so arranged that it will necessarily be open except while the door of the room is locked from the outside. X-ray tubes in therapy shall be mounted in a grounded metal enclosure.

Note: Shock-proof: As applied to X-ray and high-frequency equipment, means that the equipment is guarded with grounded metal so that no person can come into contact with any live part.

The second sentence of the Clause does not apply to shock-proof portable units, or to shock-proof self-contained, stationary units.

(b) Every X-ray machine shall be provided with a milliammeter or other suitable measuring instrument. This instrument shall be readily visible from the control position and shall be connected, if practicable, in the grounded lead and shall be guarded if it be connected in the high-voltage lead.

(c) All X-ray apparatus for industrial use shall be of the shock-proof type.

Rule 5102

Wiring, etc.

(a) For non-shock-proof equipment overhead high-voltage conductors unless suitably guarded from personal contact shall be spaced according to Table XXXV. The high-voltage leads on tilting tables and fluoroscopes shall be adequately insulated or so surrounded by barriers that inadvertent contact with them will be improbable.

Table XXXV

Minimum Spacings for High-voltage Conductors

| Voltage Peak KV. | Opposite Polarity Inches | To Ground Inches | Above the Floor Feet |
|---|---|---|---|
| 100 | 12 | 8 | 8 |
| 200 | 24 | 12 | 10 |

These devices shall have no exposed live parts. For diagnostic work there shall be an additional switch on this circuit, which shall be of one of the following types:

(1) A switch with a spring or other mechanism that will open automatically except while held closed by the operator.

(2) A time-switch which will open automatically after a definite period of time for which it has been set.

(c) If more than one piece of apparatus be operated from the same high-voltage source, each shall be provided with a high-voltage switch to give independent control.

(d) Low-frequency current-carrying parts of machines of the quenched-gap or open-gap type shall be so insulated or guarded that they cannot be touched during operation. This applies to all parts except the high-frequency circuit proper which delivers high-frequency current normally for therapeutic purposes.

(e) Transformers which are part of an X-ray or high-frequency apparatus, even though they contain oil, shall be considered and treated as a part of the device, and need not conform to the requirements of Rule 2003 for power transformers.

(f) All X-ray generators having capacitors shall have suitable manual means for discharging the capacitors.

(g) Except in the case of self-contained units all 200 peak kv., or higher, X-ray generators shall have a sphere-gap installed in the high-voltage system, adjusted so that it will break down on over-voltage surges.

Grounding

(a) All non-current-carrying metal parts of tube stands, fluoroscopes, and other apparatus shall be grounded in conformity with the requirements of Section 9. Insulating floors, mats or platforms shall be provided for operators in proximity to high-voltage parts unless such parts be rendered shock-proof.

Note: It is recommended that floors of concrete or other conducting material be completely covered with approved insulating material, lapped at the joints and secured in place without the use of metal. It is also recommended that non-metallic tables and chairs be used.

(b) Where short-wave therapy machines are used, the treatment tables and examining chairs shall be wholly non-metallic.

Note: The presence of any metal in the high-frequency field is a definite fire hazard owing to the high temperature generated by eddy current losses set up in the metal. The use of insulating floor coverings is recommended where non shock-proof X-ray equipment is used.

SECTION 52—HIGH-POTENTIAL LUMINOUS-DISCHARGE-TUBE INSTALLATIONS

(e) The open-circuit secondary voltage of transformers shall not exceed 15,000 volts.

(f) High-potential conductors shall be suitably supported on insulators. If conductors be within reach they shall either be lead-covered approved for this purpose or installed in metal troughing.

(g) Each transformer shall be protected by an over-current device. More than one transformer may be dependent on one over-current device if the combined load does not exceed 1,650 volt-amperes. If additional devices for the individual protection and disconnection of transformers in signs be used, they may be placed either inside or outside the sign structure; if exposed to the weather they shall be of weather-proof type.

(h) Enclosures for transformers and regulating coils shall be well ventilated and so designed as to prevent the emission of flames or sparks in case of burn-out.

(i) Enclosures for transformers, regulating coils, and tube terminals, having, within the enclosure, any exposed live parts, shall be so arranged that the door of the enclosure cannot be opened while the primary circuit is closed.

(j) For bonding together isolated tube terminal boxes on any one outline system, copper wire of not less than No. 14 B. & S. Gauge shall be used.

SECTION 60—ELECTRICAL COMMUNICATION SYSTEMS

Rule 6001

Classification of Communication Circuits

For the purpose of this Section communication circuits are classified as follows:

Class 1—Circuits which are connected to power sources in such a manner that the current, voltage, and wattage of the circuit are not limited as in Class 2 circuits. Class 1 circuits are deemed to be power circuits to be constructed in accordance with the appropriate requirements of Sections 1 to 20 and subject to approval by the Inspection Department.

Class 2—Systems in which the power is limited as in (1) or (2) below. Class 2 circuits, when installed in compliance with the provisions of Rules 6002 to 6004 are not subject to approval by the Inspection Department, except that in the case of communication circuits which derive power for operation from supply circuits, the transformer or other current-limiting device used at the junction with the supply circuit is subject to such approval.

(1) Circuits operated as part of a central-station or central-exchange communication system such as telephone, telegraph, district messenger and the like.

(2) Local circuits (which may, or may not, extend beyond one building) for signalling, which meet any one of the requirements of the following Table:

Table XXXVI

Protection for Local Communication Circuits

| Operating Voltage | Required Protection |
|---|---|
| Not more than 15 | 5 ampere fuse or transformer having inherent current-limiting characteristics and approved for the purpose, or other current-limiting device.Exception—Where the source of power is primary batteries no protection is required. |

| Operating Voltage | Required Protection |
|---|---|
| More than 15 but not exceeding 30 | 3 ampere fuse or alternative as above.Exception—Where the source of power is primary batteries no protection is required. |

Rule 6002

In Buildings

General

(a) Conductors on the consumer's or subscriber's side of the protector and conductors inside buildings where no protector is provided, shall be neatly arranged and secured in place in a convenient and workmanlike manner. They shall not approach nearer than 2 in. to any electric light or power conductor unless one system is in conduit or the two systems are permanently separated by a continuous and firmly-fixed non-conductor additional to the insulation on the conductors.

Note: See "Surface-raceway Work"—Rule 508 (f) and "Underfloor Raceways"—Rule 511 (j).

The conductors would ordinarily be insulated but the kind of insulation is not specified as reliance is placed on the protector to stop all dangerous currents. Porcelain tubes and flexible tubing are considered suitable non-conductors.

(b) Conductors bunched together in a vertical run shall have a flame-retarding covering sufficient to prevent the carrying of fire from floor to floor. This requirement need not apply if the conductors be encased in incombustible tubing or be located in a fireproof shaft having fire-stops at each floor.

(c) Signal conductors shall not be placed in any outlet box, junction box or similar fitting or compartment containing electric light or power conductors unless they are separated from them by a suitable partition, except where the power conductors are introduced solely for power supply for signalling equipment or for connection to remote-control equipment.

(d) Transformers and other devices supplying current to signal systems from electric light or power circuits shall be of a type expressly approved for such service; the secondary wiring shall conform to the requirements of this Section and the primary or charging circuit wiring to the requirements of Section 1 to 20.

Protection

Where the Outside Wiring of a Communication System Consists of Aerial Conductors

(a) In general, an approved protector shall be placed within the building as near as practicable to the point of entrance, but not in the immediate vicinity of flammable or explosive materials and shall be mounted on an incombustible, absorption-resisting, insulating base.

Notes:

(1) If desired, the protector may be placed in a weather-proof box installed on the outside of the building wall immediately adjacent to the point of entrance.

(2) Where a number of conductors are grouped to serve a building the protectors may be mounted on a grounded metallic frame.

(b) The protector shall consist of a lightning-arrester between each line-conductor and ground and a fuse in each line conductor, the fuses protecting the arresters. The protector terminals shall be plainly marked to indicate "line", "instrument" and "ground."

(c) If the entire street circuit be run underground, no protector need be provided unless that portion of the circuit between the street and the building be liable to accidental contact with electric lighting or power conductors, operating at a potential exceeding 250 volts.

Grounding

(a) Grounding conductors for the protection of Class (2) communication systems shall be of copper not less than No. 18 B. & S. Gauge and shall be insulated with rubber not less than 1/32 in. thick, covered with a substantial braid. Such grounding conductors shall be run in as straight a line as possible, and shall preferably be connected to a water-pipe ground. In the absence of a water-pipe ground, connection may be made to a grounded metallic structure, or to a driven ground.

(b) No grounding conductor and no artificial ground used for grounding any other type of electrical system shall be used for the grounding of a Class 2 communication system, except when the grounding conductors of both systems are connected with a low resistance ground, such as a neutral grounding system or a public water-piping system.

(c) The grounding conductor shall be attached to the pipe by means of an approved bolted clamp to which the conductor is soldered or otherwise connected in a suitable manner.

Rule 6005

Outside Conductors

Note: These regulations are temporarily included in Part I of the Code until Part III of the Code is completed.

(a) Special permission shall be obtained if it be desired either to attach conductors to the upper surfaces of roofs or to run them over roofs with a clearance of less than 6 feet except in the case of auxiliary buildings of one storey such as garages and the like.

(b) Underground conductors shall not be placed in any duct or lateral containing electric lighting or power conductors nor shall the latter be placed in any communication duct or lateral.

If manholes be used jointly by electric lighting or power cables and those of communication system, the two classes shall be separated as widely as possible and shall, where practicable, enter and leave the manholes at opposite sides.

Note: It is strongly recommended that the communication and supply cables be separated throughout their length by adequate thicknesses of either brick, concrete, tile or similar materials, and that communication cables in manholes be encased in Portland cement one-half inch in thickness; all other cables to be protected in the same manner or by means of webbed asbestos.

(c) Overhead conductors shall not be attached to a crossarm carrying electric lighting or power conductors nor shall they, when on the exterior walls of buildings, be brought closer than 4 in. to electric lighting or power conductors unless one system be in conduit or be permanently separated from other systems by a continuous, firmly-fixed non-conductor additional to the insulation on the conductors.

(d) Metal sheaths of aerial cables which are liable to contact with electric lighting or power conductors, shall either be interrupted, close to the entrace to a building, by an insulating joint or some approved equivalent, or shall be grounded.

(e) On any pole carrying conductors of both communication and electric lighting or power systems, the distance between the two inside pins on any crossarm shall be not less than 30 in., except on a pole carrying conductors of one of the two systems for clearance purposes only, when crossing the other system's pole lines. Wherever practicable, the conductors of the communication systems shall be supported on the lower cross-arms.

(f) Aerial cables of the metal-sheathed type shall have paper or other suitable insulation. If the metal sheath be omitted, and the conductors are bunched, each conductor shall be insulated with rubber not less than 1/32 in. thick, and the whole shall be covered with a substantial braid.

(g) Conductors from the last outdoor support to the protector, and conductors attached to buildings, shall have rubber insulation not less than 1/32 in. thick on each wire; in addition, the conductors, either individually or bunched, shall be covered with a substantial braid. If not run in conduit such conductors, where attached to buildings, shall be separated from woodwork by being supported on glass, porcelain, or other insulating material suitable for the purpose.

(h) Conductors shall enter buildings either through incombustible, absorption-resisting, insulating bushings or through rigid conduit, or armoured-cable shall be used. If bushings be used these shall slope upward from the outside, or if this cannot be done, drip-loops shall be formed in the conductors, immediately outside the point of entrance. Conduit shall be equipped with weather-proof service-fittings. More than one conductor may enter through one bushing or conduit.

(i) The preceding Clauses (g) and (h) shall not apply if the conductors enter a building in the form of a cable such as is described in Clause (f) nor if the entire street circuit be run underground, and that portion of the circuit between a street and a building be not liable to accidental contact with electric lighting or power conductors of over 250 volts.

SECTION 70—MAINTENANCE AND OPERATION

G. and shall leave not less than 4 feet of this conductor extending outside the weatherproof enclosure.

(d) The Commission's employees shall attach the grounding conductor referred to in Clause (c), to the Commission's ground wire by means of a solderless connector and shall supply, install, and test, the ground-electrodes, which shall be not less than two in number.

Note: Contractors and others are reminded that Clauses (a), (b), (c) and (d) apply only where the service equipment is installed on transformer poles. Where current is supplied by a Supply Authority other than the Commission, and the Supply Authority agrees that its employees shall carry out the requirements of Clause (d) the service equipment may be installed on transformer poles in accordance with Clauses (a), (b) and (c).

18. SERVICE EQUIPMENT IN LOCATIONS OTHER THAN ON TRANSFORMER POLES

(a) Service and meter equipment shall not be installed in a barn, stable, or other building in which live stock is kept or where such stock may be stabled.

(b) Service boxes intended for inside use shall not be installed out of doors. In cases where it is possible to install such a service box and a meter on a verandah and completely protect them against rain and snow, special permission shall be obtained before the installation is made.

(c) The neutral conductor shall be brought into the service box and grounded.

(d) The neutral service conductor shall be grounded on the line side of the neutral bar of the service switch.

(e) The neutral grounding-conductor shall be so attached to the neutral bar of the service switch by means of a separate lug or other approved device that it may be removed for testing.

19. METERED OVERHEAD CIRCUITS AND FEEDERS

(a) All overhead metered circuits and feeders, other than those to the house, barn, or main point of distribution shall be of copper and not smaller than No. 10 B. & S. G. If the span is over 50 feet and not more than 100 feet in length No. 8 B. & S. G. copper shall be the minimum.

(b) Secondary overhead conductors between the lines of the Supply Authority and the consumer's service or between the consumer's service and the main point of distribution, shall be of copper and not smaller than No. 6 B. & S. G.

(c) All overhead conductors shall have weatherproof insulation, with the exception that the neutral conductor may be bare.

(d) Feeders between the main point of distribution and the barn shall be not smaller than No. 8 B. & S. G. copper.

(e) Feeders run from a service to supply a residence only, shall be copper not smaller than No. 8 B. & S. G.

(f) Where conductors are dead-ended, the wire which has been served around the insulator, shall be taped where the insulation has been removed or where the conductor is exposed. The tape shall be painted with an approved compound.

(g) The yard-light shall not be installed on a transformer pole.

(h) Switches used to control the yard-light, (or lights) from more than one point shall be so wired and connected that the neutral conductor runs direct to the light (or lights), controlled thereby.

(i) The yard-light neutral may be connected to a sub-feeder neutral.

Note: It is recommended that the feeder, referred to in Clause (d), be 3-wire up to the distribution centre in the barn, in order that ample capacity will be provided to take care of 220-volt motors which may be installed at a later date.

(a) Disconnecting switches are not required where sub-feeders enter the various buildings. The sub-feeder may be run directly into the building and terminate in a cutout box or panel as the Rules and Regulations governing Electrical Installations and Equipment permit.

(b) It is recommended that all feeders be brought into barns and outbuildings in non-metallic sheathed cable. This cable, when used, shall be run entirely inside the building and shall terminate in an approved weatherproof fitting at the point of attachment to the yard feeder. This will obviate the necessity of grounding cutout boxes and distribution panels if they are installed in such a manner that they cannot be reached from grounded material.

(c) The wiring in the residence may be run in knob-and-tube work, non-metallic sheathed cable or any other approved method may be used.

(d) The wiring in barns, stables and out-buildings may be run in non-metallic sheathed cable or any other approved method, using keyless weatherproof pigtail lampholders at all incandescent-lamp outlets. All incandescent-lamp outlets shall be controlled by means of switches. Approved bushed covers, made of insulating material, shall be used on all outlet boxes to which pigtail lampholders are connected. Metal covers shall not be used for this purpose.

(e) Non-metallic sheathed cable shall be adequately protected from mechanical injury, special attention being given to cases where the cable is run on the walls and framework in barns, outbuildings and residences.

Note: It is recommended that "ground-wire moulding*" be used for this purpose, in barns and outbuildings, as it indicates the proximity of an electrical circuit.

(f) Non-metallic sheathed cable in barns or stables shall not be run on outside walls directly over windows or doors.

(g) Wiring shall not be installed in root houses.

(h) Non-metallic sheathed cable shall not be run in stair-wells or through other openings, such as ventilating ducts, between the stable and the floor above.

(i) Where it is necessary to run wiring from the stable to the floor above, it is recommended that the cable be run through a length of rigid metal conduit. The conduit shall be sealed at both ends with an approved insulating compound.

(j) Where combustible particles are likely to collect on lamps installed in fixed positions, as in the hay loft or granary, the lamps shall be installed so that they hang vertically and be enclosed in dust-tight globes.

(k) Receptacles, installed in stables, barns and outbuildings, to which portable devices may be attached shall be of the 3-pole type with one pole grounded.

(l) All conductors, including grounding conductors, shall be kept at least 8 feet away from any lightning conductor.

(m) The non-current-carrying metal parts of all equipment shall be grounded by means of a driven ground; e.g. motors connected to private water-supply systems, feed choppers, milking machines, separators, etc. Water-heater tanks shall be grounded by means other than their own supply pipes.

(2) The said support is of sufficient height to allow the service wires to maintain standard clearances as hereinafter set out in Table I.

(e) The hamlet consumer is required to pay for all brackets and service wires that are more than 50 feet from the property line, and for all poles that are necessary, except that

(1) The Commission will supply and install a pole or other support, when necessary, to provide clearance over foreign lines located on the highway.

(2) Where the highway to be crossed is wider than 66 feet, the Commission will supply a pole or other support to ensure proper clearance of the service wires over the highway.

(f) In summer-cottage areas, where the Commission's line is located on private property, the Commission will

(1) Supply and install a span of wire not exceeding 100 feet in length.

(2) Supply and install the necessary bracket or its equivalent, at the consumer's first point of support.

(g) For all other classes of consumers the Commission will supply the service wires up to the property line and install a pole or other support where necessary, to provide clearance over foreign lines.

(h) The Commission will install the necessary anchor and guy for its own pole in order to properly support that end of the service line.

(i) Where the Commission's line is located on private property, the consumer will not be required to build any more line than if the Commission's line were located on the public road.

CONSTRUCTION TO BE SUPPLIED BY THE CONSUMER

(a) The consumer shall be responsible for the supplying of approved material, and for complete construction of the service line, with the exception of the above-mentioned material as supplied, erected, and connected to the line, by the Commission.

(b) The consumer shall supply an approved type of service box or other protective equipment if capacity in excess of 50 amperes is required.

(c) The consumer shall have his construction completed, or at least contracted for, before the Commission will commence the construction of its line on the highway.

(d) In accordance with Clause 5 of the contract signed by the consumer, all lines and equipment supplied by him shall conform to these Specifications, and shall be maintained by the consumer in a manner satisfactory to the Commission.

(e) All wiring on the consumer's property shall be approved by the Inspector before the Rural Superintendent will connect the service.

LAYOUT

(a) Before starting the construction of a service line the consumer, or his contractor, shall consult with the Rural Superintendent or his representative regarding the layout of the service line and the location of the transformer and meter.

Note: Where the length of the service line on private property is 300 feet or less, the voltage will in general be 115/230 volts, (secondary), but where the line is over 300 feet in length and for the larger loads, it may be advisable to use a higher voltage (primary) and locate the transformer closer to the consumer's equipment. It should, however, be remembered that primary wires on private property constitute a greater hazard than do secondary wires and it is necessary to be more particular in the installation from a safety point of view.

POLES

(a) Poles shall have a top diameter of not less than 6 in. and shall be of Cedar, Sweet Chestnut, Treated Pine or other approved material.

(b) Cedar shall conform to the CESA Specification No. C-15-1924, herein, for Class C Eastern Cedar Poles. The strength of all other poles shall be at least equivalent to that of Cedar as covered by the above-mentioned specification.

(c) Poles for primary service lines shall not be less than 30 feet in length and shall have a top diameter of not less than 6 inches.

(d) For crossarm construction, poles shall be both roofed and gained according to Dwg. No. 6206 E.D. herein; for secondary rack or bracket construction, roofing only will be required.

SPANS

(a) The maximum spacing between poles shall be 125 feet for secondary lines, and as hereinafter set out in Table 3 for primary lines.

(b) The span from the Commission's line pole on the public road to the first pole of the service line shall not exceed 125 feet. In all cases poles of sufficient height to provide proper clearances over the highway shall be used.

(c) The span from an attachment on a building to the nearest pole shall not exceed 100 feet.

CLEARANCES ON PRIVATE PROPERTY

(a) The height and location of poles shall be such as to give the minimum vertical clearances specified in the following Table.

Table I

Vertical Clearances Above Ground and Between Conductors

| Location | Line Voltage | |
|---|---|---|
| Vertical Clearances: | 0-300 | 301-12000 |
| 1. Above ground accessible to vehicles | 16 ft. | 20 ft. |
| 2. Above ground accessible to pedestrians only | 12 ft. | 15 ft. |
| 3. At crossings of telephone wires and power wires | 3 ft. | 5 ft. |
| 4. Wires at 300 volts or less crossing under other power wires | 2 ft. | 4 ft. |

(b) Minimum clearances from buildings shall be as specified in the following Table.

Table II

Horizontal and Vertical Clearances from Buildings

| Line Voltage | Horizontal | Vertical |
|---|---|---|
| 0-300 | 3 ft. | 6 ft. |
| 301-12000 | 10 ft. | 10 ft. |

(c) Special hazards such as wells, windmills, flag poles, silos, entrances to haymows, etc., shall be avoided. A minimum vertical clearance of 10 feet above haymow entrances, barn doors or windows shall be provided.

Note: Where the erection of a telephone circuit on the same poles with a power circuit is contemplated, the Telephone Utility should be advised of the voltage of the power circuit, and its consent to the joint use of poles obtained. It is recommended that telephone circuits be not erected on poles carrying power circuits of more than 5000 volts to ground.

(d) The vertical clearance between the power circuit and the telephone circuit shall be not less than 4 feet; it is recommended that a clearance of 6 feet be given for power circuits in excess of 2300 volts to ground. The maximum spacing between poles shall not exceed 175 feet.

(e) Where the power circuit and the telephone circuit are on separate pole lines within 10 feet of each other, the power circuit shall be above the telephone circuit with a minimum vertical clearance of 5 feet for voltages up to 5000 volts to ground and 7 feet for voltages above 5000 volts to ground.

(f) Service lines operating at a potential of over 300 volts, if crossing other wires of lower voltage, including telephone circuits, shall cross above these wires with the necessary clearance.

ANCHORS AND GUYS

(a) All poles in the service line both at dead-ends and angles shall be guyed to an anchor log or to an approved patent anchor as shown in Dwgs. Nos. 6300, 6301, and 6334, E.D.

(b) If local conditions do not permit the use of a guy, a push brace may be used at angles as shown in Dwg. No. 6320 E.D.

(c) For circuits up to 300 volts only, the trunk of a stout tree may be used where an anchor cannot be installed. In this case the attachment to the tree shall be made either with a $\frac{5}{8}$-in. eye-bolt, or a screw-eye at least 6 in. long.

(d) Guy wire shall be of 7-strand steel with a minimum diameter of $\frac{1}{4}$ in., and shall be galvanized.

(e) Each guy shall have a strain insulator, shall be installed as per Dwg. No. 6332 E.D. or Dwg. No. 6333 E.D., and shall be protected by a steel or a wooden guard. This guard may be omitted when the guy is in an inaccessible location.

(f) If the guy wire must pass over a roadway, construction shall be as shown on Dwg. No. 6319 E.D.

(g) The guy wire on a transformer pole shall be attached with an approved fitting as shown on Dwg. No. 6864 E.D., Items 1 and 8, or on Dwg. No. 6332 E.D., so that there will be no contact with the ground wire on the pole. On other poles, guys may be attached either by this method or by wrapping two turns around the pole and using two guy hooks.

(h) The distance of the anchor from the pole shall be not less than 1/3 the height of the pole.

CROSSARMS AND HARDWARE

(a) All hardware shall be hot-dip galvanized.

(b) Crossarms shall preferably be of Douglas Fir at least $3\frac{1}{4}$ in. x $4\frac{1}{4}$ in. with the long dimension vertical. Cedar which is clear of knots may be used and shall dress $3\frac{3}{4}$ in. x $4\frac{3}{4}$ in.

(c) The minimum spacing between the pins of a 2-pin arm or between the pole pins of a 4-pin arm shall be 30 inches. The spacing between other pins of a 4-pin arm shall be at least 18 in. and where pole spans are 200 feet or more this spacing shall be 30 in. There shall be 5 in. of wood between end pins and ends of arms.

(d) No. 3 wood pins as per Dwg. No. 6858 E.D., or steel pins as per Dwg. No. 6828 E.D., shall be used.

(e) Braces shall be 20-inch for 2-pin arms and 30-inch for all other arms.

(g) At angles up to 60 deg., construction shall be as per Dwgs. Nos. 6313 E.D. and 6314 E.D. At greater angles buckarms shall be used as per Dwg. No. 6321 E.D. using either 2-pin or 4-pin arms.

(h) If wood pins are used in arms, steel angle-pins shall be used on all angles greater than 22½ deg. and up to 60 deg. Double arms with wood pins may be used on angles from 22½ deg. to 45 deg. instead of a single arm with steel angle-pins.

(i) If steel pins are used in arms, steel angle-pins shall be used on all angles up to 60 degrees.

(j) At primary dead-ends double 4-pin arms shall be erected as per Dwg. No. 6308 E.D. The two inside spacing bolts may be omitted when two conductors only are used.

(k) Primary conductors shall be dead-ended on approved clevises as per Dwg. No. 6327 E.D., for voltages under 5000 volts to ground and as per Dwg. No. 6336 E.D. for voltages over 5000 volts to ground.

(l) Pole-top pin construction may be used for single-phase grounded circuits if written permission is obtained from the Rural Superintendent and, if used, construction shall be as shown in Dwgs. No. 6224 E.D. and No. 6225 E.D. for spans up to 150 feet. Where spans exceed 150 feet, pins as per Dwg. No. 6833-1 E.D., Item 4, shall be used.

(m) For secondary construction on straight runs, either racks, (see Dwgs. Nos. 6835 E.D. and 6861 E.D.) or brackets, (see Dwg. No. 6830 E.D.) shall be used, but at all angles and dead-ends racks only shall be used.

Note: Dwgs. Nos. 6325 E.D. and 6329 E.D. show the method of erecting racks and brackets.

(n) Where primary and secondary circuits are carried on the same poles, the top of the secondary rack or bracket shall be at least 2 feet below the centre of the primary crossarm.

Note: In special cases, secondary racks or brackets may be replaced by crossarms.

INSULATORS AND CONDUCTORS

(a) The insulator used on the phase wires of a primary circuit of 5000 volts to ground, or less, shall be brown glaze, top-tie, and of wet-process porcelain, as per Dwg. No. 6838 E.D., Item 2. A similar insulator with slate-coloured glaze shall be used for the grounded neutral wire of any primary circuit. For primary circuits of more than 5000 volts to ground and for 6600-volt un-grounded circuits, the phase insulators shall be brown glaze, top-tie, of wet-process porcelain, as per Dwg. No. 6838 E.D., Item 5.

(b) The pin-type insulator for 115/230 volt secondary circuits shall be of wet-process porcelain or of glass, of an approved type as shown on Dwg. No 6838 E.D., Item 1 or Item 4.

(c) The spool insulator for secondary racks shall be of wet-process porcelain, as per Dwg. No. 6839 E.D., Item 2 and No. 6861 E.D.

(d) When service knobs are used they shall be of a type satisfactory to the Commission.

(e) Splices in conductors shall be made as per Dwgs. Nos. 6401 E.D. or 6403 E.D.

Note: Arrangements should be made with the Rural Superintendent to avoid a splice in wires crossing a public road.

(f) For primary lines of 2300 volts and higher the minimum sizes of conductors and limiting pole-spans shall be as shown in the following Table:

Table III

Minimum Sizes of Conductors and Maximum Spans

| Standard Conductor | Maximum Length of Pole Span |
|---|---|
| No. 6 B. & S.G. H.D. Bare copper | 150 feet |

Note: The maximum span where poles carry a telephone circuit shall be 175 feet.*

(g) Special permission in writing shall be obtained from the Commission for the use of the special conductors, referred to in Table III.

(h) In unusual cases where it is imperative to use longer spans than those specified in Table III, special permission and necessary specifications shall be obtained from the Inspector.

(i) For secondary service lines the minimum conductivity and strength of conductor shall be equivalent to those of No. 6 B. & S. G. medium-hard-drawn copper. The neutral of the service line shall be erected on the top position of the rack or bracket and may be a bare conductor. All other secondary conductors shall have double-braid weatherproof insulation.

No. 6420 E.D.

(k) Taps to all conductors shall be made as shown on Dwg. No. 6402 E.D., using clamps as shown in Dwg. No. 6863 E.D.

(l) The bare part of the conductor where insulation has been removed in making a tap or a dead-end shall be taped, and painted with an insulating compound.

(m) In making a dead-end on an insulated conductor, only that portion of the insulation where the clamp is attached shall be removed.

SERVICES

(a) Secondary service lines of more than one pole span in length shall not be dead-ended on a building, except a barn or shed where the dead-end rack as per Dwg. No. 6861 E.D. or No. 6835 E.D. can be attached to the timber framing of the building with two machine bolts at least ½ inch in diameter backed by a large square washer.

(b) Where a service line is dead-ended and guyed on the last pole, or where the length of the service drop between the Commission's pole line and the attachment on the building does not exceed 100 feet, the service wires may be attached to the building as shown in Dwg. No. 6609 E.D. with an approved type of service knob as per Dwg. No. 6860 E.D.

(c) The sag of drop wires shall be as shown in Dwg. No. 6454 E.D.

(d) Service knobs shall have a No. 22 wood screw 2 in. long for attachment to solid masonry walls and shall be anchored by an approved type of metal anchor in the solid portion of the stone or brick.

(e) For attachment to sheeted frame buildings, the screw of the service knob shall be 3½ in. long and screwed into a stud or other solid timber. Where the knob is attached to facial boards, etc., the board shall be suitably reinforced. The screw shall not be put in the end grain of the wood, and before screwing it into any wood, a 1/8 in. hole shall be drilled to prevent splitting.

(f) For attachment to brick-veneer buildings the screw of the service knob shall be 6½ in. long and shall pass through the mortar course into the sheeting. For stucco or hollow tile walls a service knob with a ¼-in. toggle bolt shall be used.

(g) Where it is desired to install the service box on a pole which is supporting secondary conductors only it shall be erected as shown in Dwg. No. 6611 E.D. and when this box is installed on a transformer pole no equipment other than that shown on Dwg. No. 6610 E.D. shall be placed on the pole.

(h) The service box shall not be installed on a pole which is located on a public road.

(i) No attachment shall be made to the Commission's poles except where a consumer desires to run his wires across a road from the house to the barn and an attachment on the Commission's pole is necessary in order to maintain proper road clearance. The consumer shall first obtain written permission from the proper road authorities. He shall also obtain permission in writing from the Commission, but this permission will not be granted unless the consumer's attachment can be made below the Commission's attachments, and the consumer's wires will maintain minimum clearance over the roadway, of 20 feet.

(j) When the service box is installed on a transformer pole, the Commission will install the necessary ground electrode. The consumer shall provide, for non-current-carrying metal parts, a grounding conductor which will be connected by the Commission to the ground wire on the pole.

(k) Indoor service boxes shall be located where the meter will be readily accessible for reading and not exposed to moisture, dust or corrosive vapour.

(l) No work shall be done by a consumer or any of his employees or agents on any pole carrying primary (voltage over 300) conductors unless the Rural Superintendent has been notified and has shut off the power.

TREE TRIMMING

(a) Trees shall be trimmed to provide clearance of at least five feet from light limbs and branches, for all primary conductors up to 4000 volts, and seven feet for higher voltages. The clearance from a heavy tree trunk or limb which does not sway appreciably may be reduced to three feet. In all cases sufficient clearance must be given to prevent any hazard.

(b) For secondary lines or services, trees should be so trimmed that no branches are in contact with wires.

(c) Drawing No. 6904 shows the approved method of removing branches from trees.

CANADIAN ENGINEERING STANDARDS ASSOCIATION

STANDARD SPECIFICATION FOR EASTERN CEDAR POLES

GENERAL

C-15-1924

General.

1. This specification covers poles of Eastern Cedar (Thuja Occidentalis) possessing the characteristics hereinafter set forth, and divided into grades with respect to straightness, and into classes with respect to dimensions.

Orders.

2. Orders for poles under this Specification should state the length, grade and class desired.

When seasoned poles are required, a notation should be made to that effect on the order.

Timber.

3. All poles shall be cut from live timber and shall be free from defects, except as provided hereinafter. They shall preferably be cut in the winter season.

4. Fire-killed or drowned poles may be accepted, if cut within one year after being killed.

Finish.

5. All poles shall be completely peeled and not shaved. Knots shall be trimmed smoothly and butts and tops cut square.

DEFECTS

Knots.

6. No pole shall contain loose or hollow knots, knots showing evidence of decay, or knots that plainly impair the strength of the pole.

Dead or Dry Streaks.

7. A sound dead or dry streak is permissible if it does not cover more than one-fourth of the circumference of the pole at any section.

Cat faces.

8. Small cat faces are permissible if sound and trimmed smoothly, and if no part of the cat face shows on the upper or lower one-fourth of the pole.

Twist.

9. Twist in the grain shall not be greater than one complete turn in 20 feet.

Defective Tops.

10. Poles having tops of the required dimensions shall have sound tops, but where the top is larger than the required circumference by one inch or more, there may be one pipe rot not more than one-half inch in diameter.

11. Poles with double hearts or tops shall be free from rot where the two parts join.

Defective Butts.

12. Poles containing hollow hearts, butt rot, ring rot, and shakes will be accepted in certain cases if the butt circumference is increased as shown in the following Table I.

13. Scattered rot shall be considered as equivalent to the butt defects compensated for in the following Table I., unless any portion of it lies within three inches of the outside surface of the pole, in which case the pole shall be rejected.

Table I.—Compensation for Butt Defects

| Average diam. of Butt Defect (inches) | Add to circumference requirements at 6 ft. from butt of Poles—inches | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| | 20 to 30 ft. Poles | 32½ to 45 ft. Poles | 50 to 65 ft. Poles |
| 2 | None | None | None |
| 3 | 1 inch | " | " |
| 4 | 2 inches | " | " |
| 5 | 3 inches | 1 inch | " |
| 6 | 4 inches | 2 inches | 1 inch |
| 7 | Reject | 4 inches | 2 inches |
| 8 | " | 6 inches | 3 inches |
| 9 | " | Reject | 4 inches |
| 10 | " | " | 5 inches |
| 11 | " | " | 7 inches |
| 12 | " | " | 9 inches |
| 13 | " | " | Reject |

Checks.

14. All poles shall be free from large checks. Checks radiating from the centre of the butt shall be permitted, provided they do not extend outward from the centre to the pole surface in such a way as to split off a section of the butt.

Miscellaneous Defects.

15. No pole shall contain woodpecker holes, plugged holes, insect damage, or evidence of fungus growth.

All sapwood shall be free from char, rot, circumferential cracks or other defects which plainly impair the strength or life of the pole.

Percentage of Maximum Defects.

16. Not more than 10 per cent. of the poles of any lot or shipment shall contain maximum permissible crook or butt rot; and no pole shall contain more than one of the maximum permissible defects provided for above under "Dead or Dry Streaks," "Cat Faces," "Twist," "Defective Tops," "Defective Butts" and "Checks," or below under "Sweep."

GRADING AS TO STRAIGHTNESS

Sweep (Grade I).

19. Poles required by the order to be of Grade I. shall be free from all deviations from straightness except one-way sweep. The amount of such sweep between the top and six feet from the butt shall not exceed that specified for the corresponding length of pole for Grade I. in the following Table II.

Sweep (Grade II).

20. Poles required by the order to be of Grade II. may have sweep in two planes (two-way sweep) or sweep in two directions in one plane (reverse sweep) provided that a straight line connecting the centre of the top and the centre at 6 feet from the butt does not at any intermediate point leave the pole.

21. In the case of one-way sweep, the amount of such sweep between the top and six feet from the butt shall not exceed that specified for the corresponding length of pole for Grade II. in the following Table II.:

Table II.—Amount of One-way Sweep Permissible

| Length of Pole (feet) | Maximum Sweep | |
|---|---|---|
| | Grade I. | Grade II. |
| 20 or less | 4 inches | 6 inches |
| 22 to 25 | 5 inches | 7½ inches |
| 30 | 6 inches | 9 inches |
| 35 | 7 inches | 10½ inches |
| 40 | 8 inches | 12 inches |
| 45 | 9 inches | 13½ inches |
| 50 | 10 inches | 15 inches |
| 55 | 11 inches | 16½ inches |
| 60 | 12 inches | 18 inches |
| 65 | 13 inches | 19½ inches |

22. Sweep and crookedness shall be measured in accordance with the diagrams in Appendix A.

23. Short kinks or short crooks are not permitted.

CLASSIFICATION AS TO DIMENSIONS

Minimum Dimensions.

24. Poles shall be classified with respect to circumference 6 feet above the butt, and circumference at the top, in accordance with the following Table III.

*These figures indicate the approximate breaking strength with 3,600 lbs. per sq. inch fibre stress, the load being applied 3 ft. from top of pole, and the pole secured up to 6 ft. from the butt.

‡NOTE: Table III. has been revised at the suggestion of one of the utility companies and the revision was approved by the C.E.S.A. Committee on "Wood Poles for Transmission Lines" in October, 1926.

The revisions are as follows:—

Class A—inclusion of circumference dimensions for poles 20′ and 22½′ long.

Class B—revision of circumference dimensions at 6′ from butt for 20′ pole.

Class C—revision of circumference dimensions at 6′ from butt in poles 20′ and 22½′ long.

Class D—revision of circumference dimensions at top for poles 20′ and 22½′ long.

Class E—deleted.

Class F—deletion of circumference requirements for poles 30′ to 60′ long.

25. In Classes D, E, F and G, for which the butt circumference is not given, the poles shall be reasonably well proportioned throughout the entire length.

26. Poles of Classes A, B and C, in which the top circumference is ½ inch less than that given, may be accepted up to 10 per cent. of the lot or shipment.

27. No pole shall be more than six inches longer, or more than three inches shorter, than the length ordered.

INSPECTION AND REJECTION

Inspection.

28. The Vendor shall afford the Inspector representing the Purchaser, all reasonable facilities to satisfy himself that the poles are being furnished and delivered in accordance with this Specification.

Rejection.

29. Poles which do not conform to all requirements of this Specification may be rejected.

NOTE.—Appendices A and B attached form part of this Specification.

Appendix B

The following explanations give the meaning of various terms used in this Specification:

Pipe Rot is rot which affects the central portion of the heart wood; when visible at the butt, it is commonly known as Butt Rot.

Appendix A

SWEEP AND CROOKEDNESS

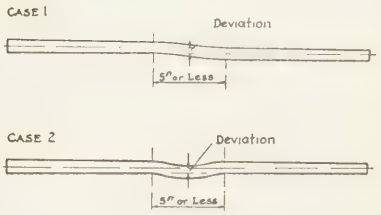

DIAGRAM 1

How to Measure Sweep

DIAGRAM 2

How to Measure Short Kink or Crook

Heart Rot or Hollow Heart is of the same description, but may not be visible at either of the cut ends of the pole. It is often evidenced by small defective knots which show rot and lead into a central cavity.

Ring Rot generally follows one or more of the annual rings, and usually affects the butt of a pole. Within the annual rings affected there is a central core of sound wood.

Dead or Dry Streaks contain wood which has become brittle, lifeless, or deficient in density, through ageing or decay.

Cat Faces are surface depressions in the body of the pole, usually elongated in shape, resulting from tree wounds where the processes of healing have not re-established a normal cross section.

Insect Damage. The scoring or channeling of the pole surface by insects working under the bark is not classed as insect damage, but any penetration of the body of the pole by insects, worms or grubs is considered as insect damage.

A Shake is a split or opening between the adjacent fibres of the wood, paralleling the grain along the length of the tree, and extending laterally approximately parallel to the annual rings, though not necessarily parallel throughout to any single ring.

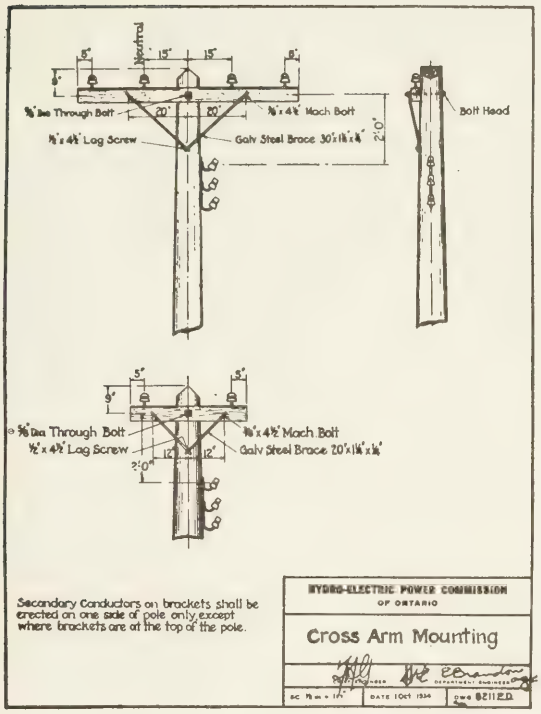
A Check is a split or opening between adjacent fibres of the wood, paralleling the grain along the length of the tree, and extending laterally in a radial direction, though not necessarily lying throughout in a single radial plane.

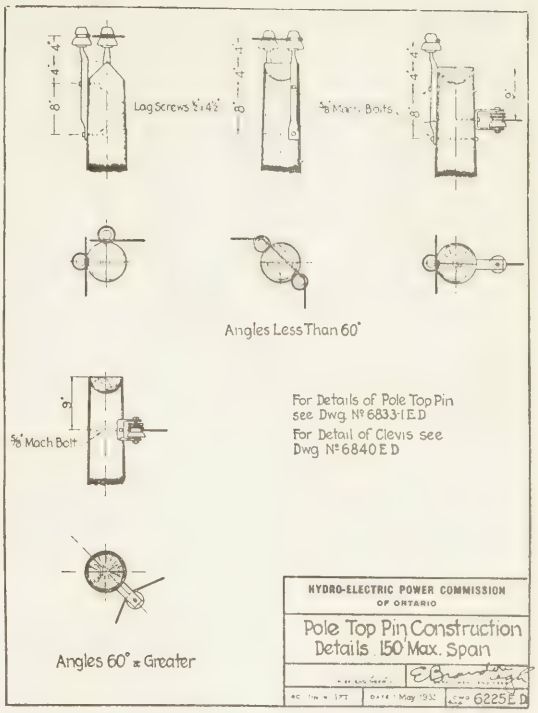
Sweep is the deviation of a pole from straightness. It is known as One-way Sweep, when it occurs in one plane, but the pole is curved in one direction only. (See diagram.)

Sweep in one plane, but curving the pole in two directions like the letter "S", is known as Reverse Sweep.

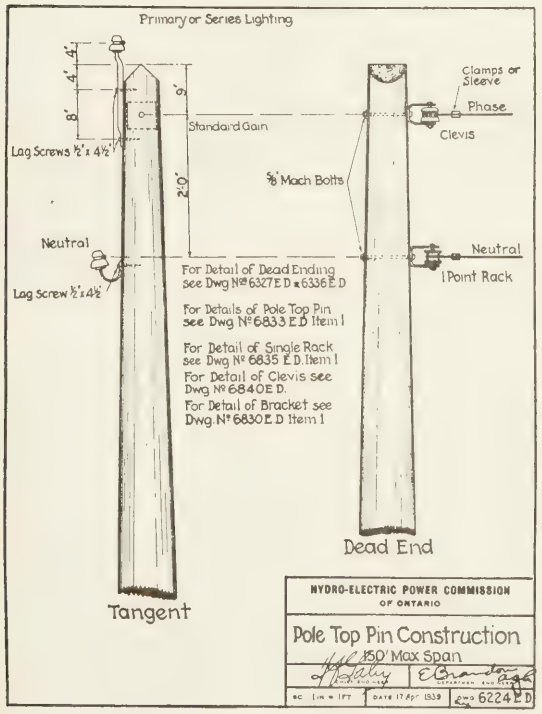
In the case of Two-way Sweep, the pole is curved in two planes, so that it will not lie flat on a plane surface.

Short Kinks or Short Crooks are localized deviations from straightness which, within any section of 5 feet or less in length, reach an amount of more than one-half the mean diameter of the pole within the crooked section.





| DEPTHS OF SETTING FOR POLES | |
|---|---|
| Length of Pole in Feet | Depth in Firm Ground or Straight Lines |
| 25 | 5 ft. – 0 ins. |
| 30 | 5 ft. – 6 ins. |
| 35 | 5 ft – 6 ins. |
| 40 | 6 ft – 0 ins. |
| 45 | 6 ft – 6 ins. |
| 50 | 6 ft – 6 ins. |
| 55 | 7 ft – 0 ins. |
| 60 | 7 ft – 0 ins. |
| 65 | 7 ft. – 6 ins. |
| 70 | 7 ft. – 6 ins. |



On slopes on hillsides depth of holes is to be measured from lowest side of hole.
On corners, curves and dead ends, depths as given above, are to be increased by (6) six inches.
Depth in rock may be one foot less than depth in firm ground.

① Locate the spot desired for the Anchor and measure from that point back from the pole the length of the rod. Bore the hole at right angles to the line of Strain

② Place the Installing Bar into the hole, hold the Anchor Rod at angle required and in same plane as Installing Bar and drive with a wooden faced maul until Rod enters hole

③ If the Anchor Rod enters the hole in such a position that it is impossible to place the Anchor Plate on it, the Rod may be bent by means of the Installing Bar and then given a quarter turn

④ Catch the Plate by the Holder on the Installing Bar, pass down into the hole and hang over the end of the Anchor Rod.

⑤ Push the Anchor Rod through to back of hole and disengage Installing Bar

THE STEAM BOILER ACT

O. Reg. 195/44.
Construction and inspection of boilers and pressure vessels.
Replacing.
Made—January 23rd, 1940.
Filed—October 30th, 1944, 8.45 a.m.

SECTION 1—SCOPE AND APPLICATION OF REGULATIONS

Rule 101

The standards that shall be used in these regulations for the design, construction, welding, installation, identification and inspection of boilers, pressure vessels, piping and fittings, shall, subject to the approval of the Authority having jurisdiction, be those of the Canadian Engineering Standards Association's specifications for material and construction of boilers or pressure vessels.

Note: See "Adoption of Publications of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, relative to Boilers and Pressure Vessels"—Page 8.

Rule 102

These regulations shall apply to all steam boilers, heat exchangers, air receivers, liquid receivers, oil stills, refrigerating plants, steam plants, steam processors, or any other pressure vessel fitting or piping, insofar as the same is provided for by the Act or defined in these regulations.

Rule 103

These regulations, except where otherwise provided by the Act, shall not apply to boilers and pressure vessels operated by railways under the supervision of the Board of Transport Commissioners nor to any boilers or pressure vessels subject to inspection under the Dominion "Steamboat Inspection Act" nor to any steam heating plant with a capacity not exceeding 30 sq. ft. of heating surface, nor to steam heating plants in private residences. Rooming houses (as defined by the Department) and apartment houses shall not be considered as private residences.

Rule 104

The Chief Inspector shall have the power to formulate rules in cases where formulae have not been provided in these regulations or where circumstances render desirable an alteration to or modification of the regulations.

Rule 105

Any Inspector, appointed under the Act, may, with the approval of the Chief Inspector, increase the Factor of Safety on any boiler or pressure vessel when he considers the workmanship, material, condition or installation is such that an increased Factor of Safety is necessary.

Rule 106

All fittings attached to any boiler or pressure vessel or used in any steam plant or refrigeration plant shall, after the coming into force of these regulations, be such as are sanctioned by these regulations.

SECTION 2—DEFINITIONS*

Rule 201

For the purpose of these regulations, the following terms shall have the meanings assigned, respectively to them:

Boiler: Any vessel in which steam is generated and which has a greater capacity than 3 cu. ft., or 20 sq. ft. of heating surface.

SECTION 3—REGISTRATION OF DESIGNS

(Drawings and Specifications)

Rule 301

Blue prints and specifications of designs in triplicate must be submitted to the Chief Inspector, for all boilers, pressure vessels and fittings; also for proposed refrigeration or steam plants, including piping arrangements and their specifications.

Rule 302

Drawings and specifications must state the maximum operating pressure and temperature, also the standard of materials and method of fabrication.

Rule 303

Before commencing construction of any boiler or pressure vessel to be built under these regulations, complete drawings and specifications must be submitted to the Chief Inspector by the manufacturers, for approval.

Rule 304

Drawings or blue prints, submitted with applications for registration, must be provided with a blank or white space 3 in. by 4 in. on which to place official approval stamp.

Rule 305

Specification forms will be supplied by the Department on request.

Rule 306

Fees for survey, according to scale of charges as outlined in Section 5, must accompany drawings and specifications when they are submitted to the Department for approval.

Rule 307

Designs, when finally approved, will be given registration numbers for the Province, and from such registered designs vessels may be made by the manufacturer in any number, full reference being made to the registration number when submitting affidavit of construction accompanying such vessels.

Rule 308

Any number of vessels may be built from a registered design until changes are made in the regulations, when notice will be given to the person who submitted the design that, within 12 months, it should be made to comply with the changes. During this period, the change, or changes, in the regulations shall not affect any registered design, but no boiler will be approved if built to such design after the expiration of 12 months' notice, when the registered design shall be cancelled.

Rule 309

Notwithstanding the fact that a design has been approved by the Department, if it be afterwards found to be defective in any particular, the manufacturer shall be notified accordingly, and shall thereupon revise the design to meet the approval of the Chief Inspector.

Rule 310

All designs submitted after the adoption of these regulations shall comply with the new requirements, but existing registered designs will continue to be acceptable so long as such designs remain unchanged.

Rule 311

Changes made by manufacturers in designs already approved and registered will necessitate the submitting of new drawings and specifications, together with fees, in the same manner as if they were original designs.

Rule 312

When a design is submitted and not approved, a report on the same will be sent to the person by whom it was submitted, who must forward new blue prints and specifications which shall conform with the provisions of these regulations; and when the design is finally passed it will again be reported on, and the vessels may then be built to such approved design.

Rule 313

In cases where boilers or pressure vessels are of unusual design and construction, and where a doubt exists as to the direction and magnitude of the stresses, permission may be given to build one boiler or pressure vessel which may be subjected to experimental tests by the Department, the cost of which tests shall be borne by the manufacturer. The design will be passed when the tests satisfy the Chief Inspector that the boiler will safely withstand the stresses to which it will be subjected during operation at the permissible pressure.

Rule 314

The approval of drawings will not in any way relieve the manufacturer of responsibility in the constructing of a boiler, pressure vessel or fitting according to these regulations.

Rule 315

In cases where boilers or pressure vessels, either new or second-hand, have not been built for operation under the jurisdiction of the Act, but are afterwards required for such purpose, complete drawings, accompanied by the affidavit, should be forwarded to the Chief Inspector; but if information by drawings and affidavits from the manufacturer for good and valid reasons is not obtainable, the Inspector making the examination of the boiler or pressure vessel shall be so informed, and he shall add to the Factor of Safety as provided in Section I, Rule 105.

Rule 316

When a boiler or pressure vessel is delivered to a purchaser in any Province, an affidavit of shop foreman and inspector under whose supervision the boiler or pressure vessel was built, fully filled out and sworn to, as per form (which will be supplied by the Department on request) shall be forwarded to the Chief Inspector. Such form shall show the name and address of the purchaser, and location of installation, and may be filled in by the sales agent.

SECTION 4—DESIGNS OF BOILER ACCESSORIES

Rule 401

Blue prints, in triplicate, from complete drawings of fittings to be used on boilers, pressure vessels or pipe lines carrying pressure, shall be sent to the Chief Inspector before any fitting is used, on which all sizes and thicknesses of metal must be shown, also specifications in triplicate stating composition of all materials, thicknesses, tensile strength, compressive strength of all parts which are subject to compression, maximum working pressure and temperature, also the pressure to which the fitting was tested by the maker and at what pressure a sample fitting ruptured when tested to destruction.

Rule 402

All standard globe-, angle-, gate- and check-valves, and pipe-fittings, such as ells, tees, unions and flanges, are not required to have each separate design registered, providing they comply with the requirements of these regulations as to material for the service for which they are intended.

Rule 403

Should an Inspector find that a manufacturer is supplying fittings that do not fully comply with the requirements of these regulations, the registration number shall be cancelled immediately and the Chief Inspector may refuse to consider any further application for registration of fittings from such manufaturer.

Rule 404

For registration of fittings the fee shall be $3.00 for each size registered; provided that where a number of sizes of the same pattern are fully shown on one blue print, giving the complete dimensions of each size, a maximum fee of $10.00 will be charged for registration.

Rule 405

When the Chief Inspector considers it necessary, sample fittings must be sent at the expense of the party registering and may be returned by the Department at the registering party's expense.

Rule 406

The Chief Inspector may select any registered and approved fittings in an agent's stock and test them, and should a number of fittings made from any registered design prove to be faulty, the Chief Inspector may cancel the registration of same.

SECTION 5—FEES

The nameplate shall be at least 5 in. by $3\frac{3}{4}$ in. in size and brazed or otherwise irremovably attached to some conspicuous portion of the vessel, preferably near a manhole, or handhole, if any.

Vessels intended for use as hot-water storage tanks or hydro-pneumatic tanks which, as to material specifications, are not constructed in accordance with these regulations, shall be stamped to indicate that they are for hot-water storage or for hydro-pneumatic purpose, only.

SECTION 8—BLOW OFF TANKS

Rule 801

When the blow-down from any boiler is discharged into a closed sewer pipe, an approved blow-off tank shall be placed between the boiler and sewer for the purpose of reducing the pressure and temperature of the water entering the sewer.

Rule 802

Where blow-off tanks are provided, they shall be of approved design, and have a capacity not less than 20 cu. ft.

Rule 803

The outlet shall be at least twice the area of the inlet pipe to the blow-down tank and made to extend internally to within 6 in. from the bottom of the tank. A vent pipe of at least equal diameter to the outlet connection shall lead to the atmosphere from the top of the tank, and for convenience in cleaning the tank, a manhole shall be provided.

Rule 804

All pipe connections between the boiler and tank shall be made as direct as possible and be equipped with sweep bends having a radius of bend at least 4 times the diameter of the pipe.

Rule 805

All designs submitted and allotted a registration number shall be built to carry a pressure equal to 50 per cent of the maximum boiler pressure under the regulations for unfired pressure vessels.

SECTION 9—SIDE LUG AND SETTINGS FOR HORIZONTAL CYLINDRICAL BOILERS

Rule 901

The following rules shall be observed in the setting of cylindrical externally-fired boilers:

(a) No boiler shall be suspended from the crown or allowed to stand on a pedestal at the back end.

(b) All externally-fired boilers up to and including 12 ft. in length and less than 48 in. in diameter may be supported upon 4 cast iron or steel brackets resting upon substantial plates set in the brickwork, the back lugs resting upon rollers between the lugs and plate to provide for the expansion of the boiler.

(c) Boilers over 12 ft. long and 48 in. and over in diameter shall be suspended at the front and back by side lugs set in pairs, or by approved double-wing, single hangers with wings double-rivetted. All lugs and brackets shall be located at each side above the fire-line and properly fitted to the curvature of the shell. The shearing stress of rivets attaching lugs and brackets must not exceed 8 per cent of the shearing strength of the rivets.

(d) All lugs shall be of steel plate or of pressed steel design located at equal distances from the centre line of each course.

(e) Suspension, when required by the preceding clauses, shall be from wrought iron or steel beams, which shall be carried by and secured to iron or steel columns having bases bolted to substantial foundations.

Suspension beams or supporting columns shall not rest on the side walls of the brick setting.

The maximum fibre stress for suspension beams shall not exceed 12,500 lbs. per sq. in.

Recommended sizes of beams and columns are shown in Table 1.

(f) Supporting columns for externally-fired boilers shall not be enclosed within the brickwork which is subject to the heat from the furnace. Columns shall be placed not less than 1 in. clear of the outer walls of the boiler or battery of boilers, so that these columns and the brickwork behind them can be readily inspected.

The maximum fibre stress for suspension rods computed at the minimum net section at the bottom of the thread shall not exceed 12,500 lbs. per sq. in. for iron rods or 15,000 lbs. per sq. in for steel rods.

Rule 1002

In the case of Horizontal Return Tubular boilers suspended from 4 points, since any slackening of one support throws the whole weight of the boiler on 2 rods, each suspension rod shall be sufficiently strong to carry one-half the total weight of the boiler without exceeding the fibre stress specified in the preceding Rule. If a link arrangement be used, the link is subjected to bending and shearing stresses in addition to the direct pull on the rods and, consequently, in calculating the size of link required, allowance shall be made for these stresses. Usually the suspension link will be sufficiently strong if the direct pull on the net sectional area of the rod of which the link is made, does not exceed 6,200 lbs. per sq. in. for iron link rods, or 8,500 lbs. per sq. in. for steel link rods.

SECTION 11—CONSTRUCTION AND GRADUATION OF STEAM AND VACUUM GAUGES

The pinion shaft shall have a tapered end to receive the pointer, the smaller end of the taper being not less than 0.075 in. in diameter. The pinion shaft and the sector shaft shall be not less than 0.100 in. in diameter.

Rule 1108

Special gauges of other materials, sizes, graduations or construction, will be permitted for any special service where the Department considers that such other size ensures greater accuracy of working or observation, or increased durability.

Rule 1203

These tests shall be made on all sample gauges sent in with the application for registration.

(b) The rated discharge capacity of rupture members with discharge piping shall be as given in Table II.

(c) The minimum required rated discharge capacity of a pressure relief device for a refrigerant-containing vessel shall be determined by the following formula:
(C=fDL.)
Where C = Minimum required rated discharge capacity of the relief device in pounds of air per minute.
D = Outside diameter of the vessel in feet.
L = Length of the vessel in feet.
f = Factor dependent upon kind of refrigerant as follows:

| Name of Refrigerant | Value of "f" |
|---|---|
| Ammonia ($NH_3$) | 0.1 |
| Dichlorodifluoromethane (Freon 12) | 0.3 |
| All other refrigerants | 0.2 |

Rule 1408

Pressure Setting of Pressure Relief Devices

(a) All pressure relief valves for refrigerant-containing vessels shall be set to function at a pressure not to exceed the design working pressure of the vessel.

(b) All rupture members used in parallel with pressure relief valves on refrigerant-containing vessels shall be set to function at a pressure not to exceed 90 per cent above the design working pressure of the vessel.

Rule 1409

Pressure Setting Test

(a) The pressure setting of relief devices for refrigerant-containing vessels shall be tested with the outlet open to the atmosphere and the relief device shall function at a pressure not more than 10 per cent above the pressure marked thereon, if such marking be 100 lbs. per sq. in. or more, or at not more than 10 lbs. per sq. in. above the pressure marked thereon, if such marking be less than 100 lbs. per sq. in.

Rule 1410

Marking of Pressure Relief Devices

(a) All pressure relief valves for refrigerant-containing vessels shall be set and sealed by the manufacturer and shall have cast or stamped on the device, or on a metal plate permanently attached thereto, the nominal pipe size of the inlet, the name or trade mark of the manufacturer, the pressure setting expressed in pounds per square inch gauge, and the rated discharge capacity expressed in pounds of air per minute. Adjustment, re-testing and re-setting of all such devices shall be made in a manner to meet the approval of the Competent Authority.

(b) All rupture members for refrigerant-containing vessels shall have cast or stamped on the device or on a metal plate permanently attached thereto, the nominal pipe size of the inlet, the name or trade mark of the manufacturer, and the bursting pressure expressed in pounds per square inch gauge.

Rule 1411

Installation of Pressure Relief Devices

(a) A rupture member may be located between a pressure relief valve and a pressure vessel provided the pressure at which the rupture member will relieve is not in excess of the pressure setting of the relief valve.

(b) No stop valve shall be located between any automatic pressure relief device and the part or parts of the system protected thereby except when parallel relief devices (see Clause 1404 (a)) are so arranged that only one can be rendered inoperative at a time for testing or repair purposes.

(c) All pressure relief devices shall be connected as nearly as practicable directly to the pressure vessel or other parts of the system protected thereby, and shall be placed above the liquid refrigerant level.

Rule 1412

Discharge from Pressure Relief Devices

(a) Pressure relief devices and fusible plugs, except those used on systems containing less than 50 lbs. of a Group 1 refrigerant, those used to protect compressors and rupture members used as provided for in 1411 (a), shall discharge to the outside of the building at a location not closer than 10 ft. to the nearest opening.

(b) The size of the discharge opening and pipe from the pressure relief device shall not be less than the size of the relief device inlet. The discharge from more than one relief device may be run into a common header, the area of which shall be not less than the sum of the areas of the pipes connected thereto; except that with the parallel relief device arrangement (see Clause 1404 (a)) the pipe size of the common discharge line from the same shall be not less than the larger pipe connected thereto.

The limits of hours as herein specified shall apply according to the maximum pressure attained at any time during any shift.

11. Foremen and others specified by the superintendent of construction whose presence under air pressure is required for only short periods of time may enter the open air without the usual decompression, but no person shall remain under compressed air at pressures ranging from 15 lbs. to 27 lbs. for a longer period than 30 minutes, or for a greater length of time than 15 minutes at pressures exceeding 27 lbs. but less than 31 lbs., or leave pressures of 31 lbs. and over without being decompressed.

12. Additional hours of work required on any shift in cases of emergency, both as to the amount of extra time required under pressure and the rate of decompression thereafter, shall be at the discretion of the inspector enforcing these regulations.

DECOMPRESSION

13.—(a) Except as specified in regulation 11, no person employed in compressed air shall be permitted to pass from the place in which the work is being done to normal air except after decompression in the intermediate lock as follows:

(b) The stage decompression shall be used, in which a drop of half the maximum gauge pressure shall be at the rate of five pounds per minute. The remaining decompression shall be at a uniform rate and the total time of decompression shall equal the time specified for the original maximum pressure as follows:

(c) Where the pressure is greater than normal and less than fifteen pounds to the square inch, decompression shall be at the minimum rate of three pounds per minute.

(d) Where the air pressure is fifteen pounds or over and less than twenty pounds to the square inch decompression shall be at the minimum rate of two pounds per minute.

(e) Where the air pressure is twenty pounds or over and less than thirty pounds to the square inch decompression shall be at the minimum rate of three pounds every two minutes.

(f) Where the air pressure is thirty pounds or over to the square inch decompression shall be at the minimum rate of one pound per minute.

(c) In the working chamber there shall be installed a portable atmospheric pressure gauge and thermometer placed not more than ten (10) feet away from the working face, also a pressure gauge attached to working chamber side of lock to show pressure in the decompression compartment.

GAUGES

16. When the pressure exceeds seventeen pounds to the square inch, where practical to do so, a recording gauge to show the rate of decompression shall be attached to the exterior of each manlock and the dial shall be of such size that the amount of rise or fall in the air pressure within any five minutes shall be readily shown.

17. There shall be on the outer side of each working chamber at least one back pressure gauge which shall be accessible at all times and shall be kept in accurate working order. Additional fittings shall be provided so that test gauges may be attached at all necessary times. Back pressure gauges shall be tested every twenty-four hours and a record kept of such test.

(a) No person shall be permitted to work in compressed air before he shall have been examined by the physician and reported to the person in charge thereof to be physically fit to engage in such work.

(b) In the event of absence from work of any employee for ten or more successive days for any cause, he shall not resume work until he shall have been re-examined by the physician and his physical condition reported to be such as to permit him to work in compressed air.

(c) No person not having previously worked in compressed air shall be permitted to work in a pressure exceeding seventeen pounds without having first been tested by the physician in the medical lock, nor shall any such person be permitted to work under any pressure for longer than one-half of a day period until he shall have been re-examined by the physician and found to be physically fit for such work.

(d) After any person has been employed continuously in compressed air for a period of two months, he shall be re-examined by the physician and he shall not be permitted to work until such re-examination has been made and he has been reported as physically qualified to engage in compressed air work.

(e) The employer shall at all times keep a complete and full record of examinations made by the physician, which record shall contain dates on which examinations were made and a clear and full description of the person examined, his age, and physical condition at the time examined, also a statement as to the time such person has been engaged in like employment. These records shall be open for inspection by the inspector charged with the enforcement of these regulations, or by any physician authorized by the Minister of Labour.

Such lock shall be not less than five feet in height and shall be divided into two compartments. Each door shall be provided with a bull's eye and fitted with air valve so arranged as to be operated from within and without. Such lock shall be kept properly heated, lighted and ventilated, and shall contain a gauge, a telephone and cot. Such lock shall be under the control of the physician in charge and there shall be maintained in close proximity a first aid room, which shall contain a bath tub and all medical and surgical appliances necessary for first aid in case of accident, and an examining room for the physicians on the work. Where the inspector deems it necessary a separate and independent compressor system shall be maintained in order to ensure the proper use and operation of the medical lock.

(g) An identification badge shall be furnished by the contractor or employer to all employees advising police officials that the employee is a compressed air worker, stating location of medical lock, and stating that in case of emergency an ambulance driver shall remove the patient to the medical lock and not to the hospital.

(h) The records of the physicians on the work, the records of the men in the air chamber, of the time taken for decompression and of any untoward symptoms that have occurred, shall be kept in duplicate, and one copy of these records shall be supplied monthly to the Department of Health of Ontario.

(i) Adequate medical service shall be available at all times while work in air under pressure is in progress. This service shall be intensified as the pressure is increased.

HOISTING ENGINEER

27. It shall be the duty of every superintendent of every tunnel having a hoisting engine to appoint and designate one or more men as hoisting engineers. Such hoisting engineers shall be holder of a current hoisting engineer's certificate for the Province of Ontario, and, except in case of emergency, the superintendent shall not permit anyone other than such duly appointed hoisting engineers to run such engine or hoisting machinery.

Where the hoisting engineer is required to have charge and operate the hoist and adjacent air compressors as a joint duty, it shall be the duty of the superintendent to provide an assistant to the hoisting engineer during all times of operation.

Where material is hoisted in caissons or tunnels where construction is done under compressed air, all hoisting, irrespective of horsepower, must be done by a hoisting engineer holding a current hoisting engineer's certificate for the Province of Ontario.

After a blast is fired loosened pieces of rock shall be scaled from the roof and sides of the excavation and after the blasting is completed, the entire locality shall be thoroughly scaled and all loose rock or ground shall be removed and the excavation made safe before proceeding with the work.

HOISTING ENGINEER

19. It shall be the duty of every superintendent of every tunnel, open caisson, coffer dam or crib work having a hoisting engine to appoint and designate one or more men as hoisting engineers. Such hoisting engineers shall be holders of a current hoisting engineer's certificate for the Province of Ontario, and, except in case of emergency, the superintendent shall not permit any one other than such duly appointed hoisting engineers to run such engine or hoisting machinery.

Where the hoisting engineer is required to have charge and operate the hoist and adjacent air compressors as a joint duty, it shall be the duty of the superintendent to provide an assistant to the hoisting engineer during all times of operation.

DUTIES OF HOISTING ENGINEER

20.—(a) It shall be the duty of every hoisting engineer to keep a careful watch over his engine and over all machinery under his charge.

(b) He shall, while on duty, be in immediate charge of his engine, and shall not at any time delegate any of his duties to any other person, except to apprentices duly designated, as provided in these rules.

(c) He shall familiarize himself with and use the signal code posted in the engine room, as hereinafter provided.

(d) He shall not run his engine unless the same is properly provided with brakes and distance marks on hoisting ropes or cables.

(k) He shall not turn over the charge of the engine to his relief at change of shift or at any other time while the bucket, skip, cage or other conveyance is in motion.

HOISTING

21.—(a) The superintendent of the tunnel, open caisson, coffer dam or crib work shall, subject to the approval of the inspector, establish for each shaft rates of speed for the cages, skips, buckets or other conveyances that shall not be exceeded in the hoisting or lowering of men, and shall post a notice of such limitation in a conspicuous place near each hoisting engine; such rates of speed shall not exceed those set forth in subsection (d) following.

(b) The superintendent of the tunnel, open caisson, coffer dam or crib work shall, subject to the approval of the inspector, determine the maximum number of men that in his judgment may safely ride on each cage, skip, bucket or other conveyance used in the tunnel, open caisson, coffer dam or crib work under his supervision, and shall post in a conspicuous place near each shaft a notice stating the maximum number of persons so permitted to ride and forbidding the carrying of any greater number.

(c) At all times when hoisting or lowering is being done, there shall be two signalmen on duty, one each at the top and bottom respectively of each shaft. Such signalmen shall be not less than twenty-one (21) years of age and shall be appointed and instructed in their duties by the superintendent. The signalman shall prevent overloading of men on cages, skips, buckets or other conveyances used in the shaft. No other persons but the signalmen shall give signals for starting or stopping such conveyances.

(d) In hoisting or lowering men with a bucket, the speed, except in the case of apprehended danger, shall not exceed one hundred (100) feet per minute when the bucket is within fifty (50) feet of the top or bottom of the shaft, or five hundred (500) feet per minute in any other part of the shaft.

(e) No person shall ride upon any cage, skip or bucket that is conveying explosives other than man in charge of same.

(f) Where a tunnel or sewer over 5 feet in diameter is to be constructed or is in the course of construction over 40 feet underground, the means of transportation to such tunnel or sewer for men or material shall be cage or elevator moving in a vertical direction, and any such cage or elevator shall be constructed, installed and operated to the satisfaction of the inspector. Unless the inspector so directs in writing the use of buckets for vertical transportation of men and material to any such dimensioned tunnel or sewer shall not be permissible.

SIGNALS

22.—(a) Every shaft shall be provided with an efficient means of interchanging distinct and definite signals between the top of the shaft and the lowest level and the intermediate levels from which hoisting is being done. After sinking operations have been completed and before tunnelling operations are begun from any shaft, there shall be provided and maintained two (2) separate systems of signalling, which shall be either electrical, pneumatic or mechanical, or one such system supplemented by speaking tube or telephone.

(b) No person shall ride upon any bucket, cage, skip or other conveyance unless proper signals have been given.

(c) The signal to move the cage, skip or bucket shall be given only when the same is at the level from which the signal is to be given.

23.—(a) The following code of signals shall be used:

1 bell—Stop if in motion, or hoist if not in motion.
2 bells—Lower.
3 bells—Men on, run very carefully.

(b) An easily legible copy of the above code and of any special code adopted in any shaft or tunnel shall be printed in letters at least one-half (½) inch high, on a board or metal plate not less than eighteen by eighteen (18x18) inches, and shall be securely posted in the engine room, at the collar of the shaft and at each level or station.

HOISTING ROPES

24.—(a) No rope or cable shall be used for hoisting or lowering men when such hoisting or lowering is done by any means other than human or animal power, unless such rope or cable shall be composed of metal wires, with a factor of safety determined as hereinafter set forth; provided, however, that such metal wires may be laid around a hemp centre.

(b) There shall not be used any rope or cable for the raising or lowering of men, either when the number of breaks in any consecutive ten (10) feet of said rope exceeds ten per cent (10%) of the total number of wires composing the rope, or when the wires on the crown of the strands are worn down to less than eighty per cent (80%) of their original area, or when they show marked sigs of corrosion.

(c) All ropes used for hoisting or lowering men shall be thoroughly inspected once in every week by some competent person designated for the purpose by the superintendent. If upon any inspection such hoisting rope or cable shall be found to be below the requirements set forth in these rules, it shall be discontinued for such purpose forthwith.

(d) Every rope used for hoisting or lowering men shall be securely fastened at both ends, and when in use shall never be fully unwound; at least two (2) full turns shall remain always on the drum or reel. The end of the rope attached to the conveyance in the shaft shall be bound around an oval thimble and fastened to itself by the use of three or more clamps or shall be securely fastened within a tapered socket.

SAFEGUARDS AGAINST OVERWINDING

25.—(a) Approved means to prevent overwinding shall be provided.

(b) There shall be installed in every shaft where men are hoisted a device which shall indicate or give a warning signal in the engine room whenever the cage, skip or bucket in ascending or descending reaches a certain point below or above the limit of travel of the cage, skip or bucket, such point to be determined by local conditions.

CAGES FOR HOISTING

26. In all shafts where men are hoisted or lowered by means of a cage, an iron-bonneted cage shall be used for the conveyance of men, but this provision shall not apply to shafts in the process of sinking or during the dismantling of the shaft after work in the tunnel is substantially completed.

Cages shall be provided with bonnets consisting of two (2) steel plates not less than three-sixteenths (3/16) of an inch in thickness, sloping towards each side and so arranged that they may be readily pushed upward to afford egress to persons therein, and such bonnet shall cover the top of the cage in such manner as to protect persons in the cage from falling objects.

Cages shall be entirely enclosed on two sides with solid partitions or wire mesh not less than No. 8 U.S. standard gauge, no opening in which shall exceed two (2) inches.

Cages shall be provided with hanging chains or other similar devices for hand holds.

Every cage shall be provided with an approved safety catch of sufficient strength to hold the cage with its maximum load at any point in the shaft.

A safety device shall be provided for blocking cars while on cage.

All parts of the hoisting apparatus, cables, brakes, guides and fastening shall be of the most substantial design and shall be arranged for convenient inspection. The efficiency of all safety devices shall be established by satisfactory tests before the cages are put into service and at least once every three months thereafter and a record thereof kept.

STAIRWAYS AND LADDERS IN SHAFTS

27. In each shaft except during the period of sinking there shall be a covered stairway at least two and one-half (2½) feet wide leading from the bottom of the shaft to the surface. In lieu of this, however, in case it is not practicable to construct such a stairway, a ladder shall be installed with landings at every twenty (20) feet of sufficient width to permit men to pass. All stairways and ladders shall be kept clear and in good condition at all times. The distance between the centres of the rungs of a ladder shall not exceed fourteen (14) inches and shall not vary more than one inch in any one ladderway. The length of the ladder rungs (width of ladder inside of stringers) shall not be less than twelve (12) inches. The rungs of a ladder shall in no case be less than four (4) inches from the wall or other obstruction in the shaft or opening in which the ladder is installed.

At all landings where it is necessary to cross from one side of the shaft to the other, passageways shall be provided and shall be kept free from all obstructions and properly lighted.

CLEANING OF LADDERWAYS AND STAIRWAYS

28. Timbers and projections on which debris may lodge in ladderways and stairways in daily use shall be kept cleaned of all loose rock and other debris.

SHAFT PROTECTION

29. During shaft sinking operations the tops of all shafts shall be guarded by a standard rail and standard toe-board, which may be provided with the necessary gates to give access to the shaft, but such gates shall be kept closed when access to the shaft is not necessary.

Means for blocking cars shall be provided at all landings and also for blocking cars on cage.

VENTILATION

30. The constructor of every shaft or tunnel shall provide and maintain for every such shaft or tunnel a good and sufficient amount of ventilation for such men as may be employed therein, and shall cause an adequate quantity of pure air to circulate throughout the working places of such shaft or tunnel.
